Dillon, Shubert — Right Way
Read Isaiah
Queer Official Conscience
The Soul Died

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company.

SOME AMERICANS go to Europe with money and enterprise on the right basis. Mr. Dillon, of Dillon, Read & Co., now in London, is planning a one hundred and fifty million dollar subway system, in which "British capital will participate to a small extent."

THE SHUBERTS of New York have six theatres in London, and will get more. That's the right way for American business men to help Europe—by going over with their money and showing how the thing should be done.

MR. DILLON plans to construct subways for trucks, to relieve traffic congestion on the surface. The same enterprise would be welcomed in American cities, especially in New York, where the stagnation point in congestion has almost been reached.

A DEVOUT READER, disturbed by the fact that passages from the Bible appear to suggest that the earth is flat and square, will find in Isaiah, most magnificent of all the old Biblical writers, a text that will satisfy him:

"It is He that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers; that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in."

You will notice that Isaiah speaks of "The circle of the earth," which would indicate a round earth. Chapter and verse are not given. Everybody should read all of Isaiah, and Job, also, at least once a year.

THE GOVERNMENT offers some worthless ships, rusting away at anchor, costing large sums for watchmen.

Henry Ford offers $1,706,000 for them. He would scrap them and use the metal, and his offer is far higher than any other.

But some conscientious official offers the suggestion that it may not be legal to sell ships if they are to be junked.

TOO BAD THAT man with a conscience was not around when the navy's oil lands were so neatly disposed of. It's extraordinary how active the official conscience becomes when an honest man offers to pay the government an honest price, and how soundly the conscience sleeps when government property is being taken.

A YOUNG MAN named Scott in Illinois is waiting to be hanged. His mother says she will kill herself at the exact hour of her son's hanging. Scott's father says, "My son's soul died last week, just before he was to have been hanged."

THAT STATEMENT is new in America, but old in literature. In his Hell, Dante shows spirits in torment whose bodies were still alive, walking the streets of Florence when he left the surface. It is explained to Dante that many souls go to hell before their bodies die so that their punishment may begin sooner.

THE MATERIAL facts concerning Scott, sentenced to death for murder, are these: Under our prohibition system Scott got drunk and killed a man. If he is hanged the bootlegger that sold him the whiskey should be hanged beside him.

MR. ALDRICH, prosperous lawyer, is sued for divorce. His wife alleges cruelty. He replies, "My only cruelty was almost stoning her to death with

DIVORCEE TO SHUN OLD HOME

Mary Converse, Who Wed Ex-Convict, Will Remain Out West, Probably in Colorado

Back here in the conservative Bay State society might never get to sympathize with the romantic impulse that led pretty Mary Converse of the Malden and Cap Cod Converses to marry Charley Essick, ex-convict, five years ago.

So Mary Converse-Essick, happily divorced after five years of misery, is not coming to her childhood home to pick up the threads of life again.

Just now she is in Portland, Ore., or on her way there, and very likely she will stay there.

In case she decides to leave, she undoubtedly will settle in Colorado, where her mother has a ranch.

MOTHER IN CALIFORNIA.

At the home of Mrs. Essick's mother in Marion, on the Cape, it was said today that Mrs. Converse had gone to California. They confirmed the story that the daughter of the house did not plan to return.

Relatives of Mrs. Essick, sympathizing with her, are understood to feel with her that she will be happier in the West.

She herself has no desire to resume a place in Boston society, which dropped her name from the Social Register after her unfortunate alliance.

Mary Converse-Essick is the daughter of the late Colonel Harry E. Converse, millionaire rubber manufacturer of Malden.

Colonel Converse moved from Malden to Cape Cod after Joe Walcott, the negro fighter, took a house not far from his.

HOW SHE MET HIM.

Mary was educated in the finest schools in the East. Like many other young women, she decided she must have a mission. And she decided it was one of social service. She became interested in prison reform. She met Thomas Mott Osborne.

And, indirectly, through him she met Charles Essick, a man of thirty-eight, who had just completed a fifteen-year sentence for a stickup in California, in which, unfortunately for Mr. Essick, the bank messenger was killed.

Telling her he was ready to go straight, and pleading with her not

AUTO TRUCK KILLS BOY; DRIVER HELD

Crashing up on the sidewalk at Crescent, Carey and Spencer avenues in Chelsea at top speed, a five-ton truck killed one boy, seriously injured another, and barely missed a third.

Chichia Salvatore, eighteen years old, of No. 163 Water street, Newburyport, the driver of the truck, is under arrest, charged with manslaughter.

Joseph Allen, twelve years old, of No. 5 Carey avenue, was killed. He was leaning against a fence, and the truck forced him backward until he was impaled on one of the pickets.

Charles Ello, thirteen years old, of No. 739 Broadway, Chelsea, was crushed and cut.

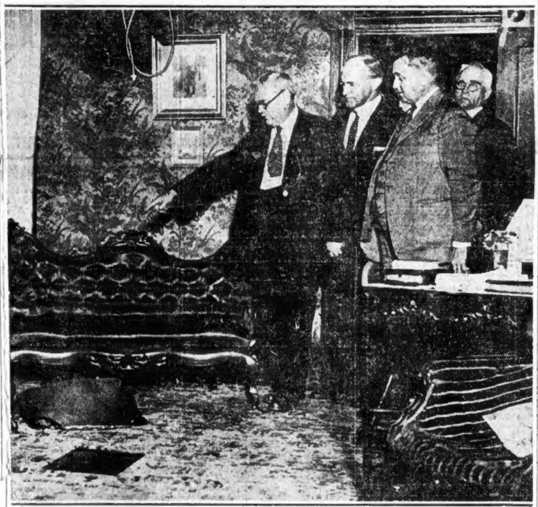
PROBING DOUBLE SLAYING



High Sheriff Down of Manchester, N. H., pointing to the couch where the body of Georgiana Gillis, seventy-seven-year-old victim of Hudson, N. H., was found. She and her older sister, Helen, aged eighty, were killed by two autoists who entered the house for the purpose of robbery, police believe.

VICTIMS OF BRUTAL CRIME HAD WEALTH HIDDEN IN COTTAGE

Hudson, N. H., July 24.—Information that Miss Helen Gillis, eighty, and her sister, Miss Georgianna, seventy-seven, brutally slain in their cottage here, were wealthy, in spite of their frugal living, and kept large sums of money in the house, convinced police today that robbery was the motive of the crime.

One theory is that the sisters were slain by someone to whom they gave temporary shelter from the torrential storm of Wednesday.

Another is that two strange men in a dilapidated automobile, who left town suddenly Wednesday night, learned of the reported wealth of the sisters and took advantage of the storm to kill and rob them.

FIRE MENACES 8 MEN ENTOMBED IN MINE

Rockwood, Tenn., July 24 (A.P.).—A holocaust threatened here today as fire, which had smouldered in the heart of the Roane Iron Company mine for four days, swept away the barriers and gnawed its way toward the spot where eight men were entombed by an explosion.

Rescue workers, who labored throughout the day and night to reach the imprisoned men, cast aside all hope of finding them alive.

Relief workers brought to the surface two of the miners who were in the mine when the blast occurred.

They aparently had been killed instantly. Members of the rescue party said their bodies had been blown 800 feet by the explosion.

More West Points and More Naval Academies Needed

From time to time this newspaper has set forth the nation's need for more military academies like West Point, more naval academies like Annapolis. This need never has been more imperative than it is today.

Three new military academies and three new naval academies—in the South, the North and the West—would do more for American citizenship and America's national defence than could be accomplished by any other means or institutions.

There is a common idea that West Point and Annapolis make only fighters. The idea is wrong.

These two national academies teach young Americans not only how to defend their country in war but also how to serve their country in peace. They teach American young men why this is a country worth defending, how the United States was built up to be the nation that it is today, what has been done and by whom to rescue it from a mere Colonial existence like Canada's, who have made the sacrifices to save it from an arrested development like Australia's, why the nation is no loose cluster of States like Germany, but a close and indivisible union, and over and above all, why only by his whole-hearted loyalty and his single-hearted devotion can the good citizen help preserve and perpetuate the institutions that safeguard the comfort, progress, well-being and liberty of all.

As schools of American citizenship—citizenship in peace, citizenship in politics, citizenship at the polls—the military and naval academies of the United States are the best. By the efforts of these academies, the teaching of true American citizenship has been carried far beyond the walls of West Point or Annapolis.

Every Summer, in the military training camps, young Americans are being taught by graduate officers what this country is and why it is, what sort of service young Americans owe the United States and how young Americans may best render the service and pay the debt. Forty thousand young men are receiving such instruction in citizenship from graduate officers this Summer.

If, North and South and West, there were three times as many academies to graduate the officers, three times as many officers to give the instruction and three times 40,000 young Americans to take their Summer lessons in American citizenship, the present gain for the country would be beyond estimate; the future benefits beyond calculation.

With this education for peace, the new national universities, like the present academies, would combine training for war.

The people of the United States will never consent to maintain a standing army large enough to defend this nation against warlike attack. They will not consent to maintain an army of the size maintained by even second-rate powers. Yet some day the attack will be made. The fact is not questioned outside of the United States. There is not a white man's capital overseas where statesmen and politicians have not scheduled the United States for the chief part in the next great war.

Almost daily the American people are warned from abroad that their day is coming—that the weapons to strike them are already being forged.

In view of this country's coveted wealth, the resentment that wealth excites, the greedy passions that it stirs, the inducements that it offers to nations whose chief idea is profit and whose chief purpose is riches, there is no doubt that war with a defenceless or half-defended United States would be regarded by one foreign nation at least, and perhaps by others, as the safest assurance of a vast money indemnity, the likeliest adventure in the pursuit of territorial compensations.

Where then would the defence of the nation be found? In navy and army. But neither army nor navy would be adequate. Neither one would be better prepared for the next war than for the last one. Where else then could the nation look for help? To the young men of America, as it looked to them upon the declaration of a state of war eight years ago.

From what happened then the American people may learn much now. The young men answered the call, answered it by the million. And there were multitudes of young men ready to fight for their country, but there was scarcity everywhere of men who knew the art of fighting, who were acquainted at once with the science and practice of war.

Such delay and confusion in another war might be fatal. The sacrifice of lives would be appalling.

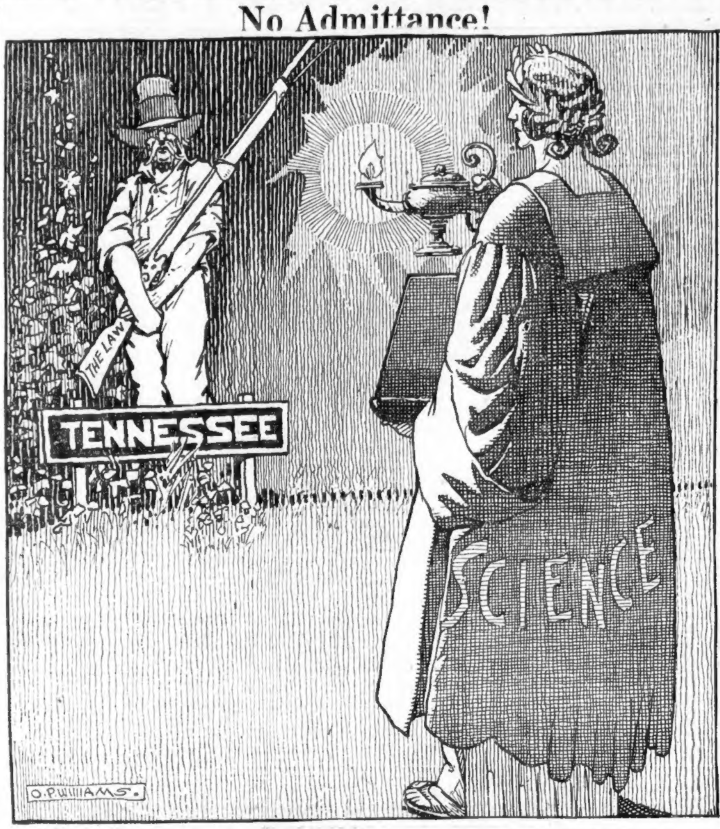
At such a time, in such an emergency a reserve of trained and educated officers in civil life would be of enormous value. It is to supply such a reserve of officers for such a crisis that three more military academies and three more naval academies should be established.

Trained in the spirit of American citizenship, drilled in the duties of the American soldier and with the morale that education in American achievements and ideals is bound to inspire, a few thousand of these reserve officers would be able to fill the gaps and work many wonders in a hasty organization at the outbreak of a new war. They would save the nation from some of the vast confusion that came with the last great war. They would save countless lives that without them would be sacrificed to ignorance and rash adventure. They might even save the American people from lasting humiliation and irreparable loss.

In a budget of three billions the cost of these national universities would be almost unnoticed. The price of the cheapest of all national insurance would be far less than any one of a dozen sums which are now voted without murmur or criticism for far less vital purposes.

Why not then pay the price and secure the insurance—the insurance for good citizenship in peace and for national defence in war—while there is yet time?

No Admittance!



HOW long does Tennessee hope to keep its people in ignorance in regard to the discoveries of science, in regard to man's development on this planet? The prejudiced Legislature patrols the borders in the same spirit of defiance that the mountain moonshiners protected their illicit stills from the coming of the law.

The laws of science and the light of knowledge must not enter there, they say. If the outside world desires to advance toward complete understanding of creation and evolution, Tennessee will stand still and remain behind. The power of prejudice has overthrown the rule of reason for the moment.

In the end, and the end may be sooner than appears now, science will win. Tennessee will be reclaimed in spite of her reactionary representatives and their narrow-minded law. Knowledge is so bright a flame that even the blind must see it ultimately.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson.

BILL and Harry and Don have formed a Mutual Offensive Party against the modern Girl.

In a red-hot letter they informed me that they have come to the conclusion that "the girl of today is not interested in the companionship of the young man with whom she goes out, but is merely looking for a good time in her own egotistic way with a complete disregard for the other party."

Does she feel any deep friendly sympathy for the young man whose kale is being spent for her amusement! No indeedy. She's out for fun, that's all. And it's time the Young Men of America awoke to the situation and did something about it.

ELSIE ROBINSON
DOES SHE GIVE A BEAN FOR HIM? NOTTA BEAN.

Since Bill and Harry and Don are backed in this protest by several thousand gentlemen of all ages we might as well stage the court martial forthwith.

Self-Centered

Is or is not the modern girl a self-centered, mercenary young person who persists in taking an absolutely selfish and frivolous view of her escort and the good time he provides for her?

Straightway rises an indignant chorus of "Ayes!"

"She's a cold-hearted gold-digger!" they yelp. "A hard-boiled egotist. Doesn't care a darn about you except for what she can get out of you. Goes out with one fellow one night and another fellow the next night—strings 'em all along. Believe me, Boy, she's a 45-minute egg, that Modern Girl!"

As her self-appointed defender, let me spike your guns at once, gentlemen, by acknowledging that THE CHARGE IS TRUE.

Does the young lady think only of the good time she's having when she toddles forth into the bright lights with her sweetie of the hour?

SHE DOES.

Does she care two hoots for the heart throbs of the Jim, or Jake or Jerry that's paying the evening's bills?

SHE DOES NOT.

Does her maiden soul quiver at this contact with a Male, and is she awed and inspired by the beautiful responsibility which is hers?

NOT ON YOUR LIFE.

Youth Merriment Time

AND WHY IN HECK SHOULD SHE?

Why should she act as if an evening's merriment were a major operation on her career? Why should she take a three days' fast every time the cashier asks her to share a hot dog? Why burst forth in wild wallops of emotion just because Gerald spends a coupla hours stepping on her corns in some cabaret?

"Life is real and life is earnest," but you've got to forget it once in a while or you'll become just about as popular as a poultice. Youth is merriment time. Youth is a time for careless adventuring. And unless you are playful and careless and adventuresome when you're young, you're going to be an awful drug on the market when you're old.

This fact has always been warmly recognized by the male fraternity. Are young men notorious for the deep, warm, self-sacrificing heart interest they take in every pretty girl they entertain?

This is a serious article, though you may not have guessed it. It goes to the roots of the tremendous readjustment between men and women. It is concerned with a more vital principle of "equal right" than even suffrage.

Vital Principle

It means that the girl of today has as much right to keep herself from Sentimental Slants as the boy—that she is no longer to be regarded as a preordained servant to masculine moods—that she, as well as he, can be free, white and flippant for a little while before she shoulders her load.

Which is a most excellent thing for the whole human race. For free folks have ever been a prouder, heartier breed than those that crawled.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

SEVERAL families who have no tubs in the basement are now sending their dogs and cats to the laundry.

THEY will wash and iron anything from a Pekinese to an Airedale.

OF course you're bound to have trouble now and then. One woman sent a beautiful snow-white poodle to the laundry and he came back full of blueing.

NOT only that, but they starched his tail.

THEY ripped the buttons off her husband's shirt and sewed them on the dog.

THEY forgot to mend his socks, but they darned the cat.

ANOTHER woman sent her pets to the laundry and they got her bundles mixed up. She gave them two fox terriers and they returned a St. Bernard.

THE week before that, she sent a cocker spaniel and they brought back three canary birds.

IN reality they were pigeons but they had shrunk.

IT'S nothing for them to take a Great Dane and shrink him until he's a Pomeranian.

IT'S a smart dog who knows what he's going to be when he comes back from the wash.

ONE dame sent her white angora cat and when they returned him he was full of laundry marks.

HER Chow dog came back looking like a rag rug.

THEY brought him in the morning and delivered his fur in the afternoon.

ONE single dog is liable to come back in three different bundles.

AFTER you get your pets home you have to assemble them.

IF you own any expensive animals it's best to have them dry cleaned.

EITHER that or hang them on the clothes line and let your husband knock the dust out of them with a carpet beater.

YOUR pets may not enjoy it as much but they'll last longer.

HANDICAP OF BEING PERFECT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is reported of Herbert Spencer that on one occasion at a club he was engaged in a game of billiards with the son of an old friend. The young man beat Spencer easily.

"Young man," said Mr. Spencer, as he put up his cue, "a certain proficiency in games of chance is not unbecoming to gentlemen, but such proficiency as you have displayed argues a misspent youth."

There is such a thing as knowing too much and being too perfect.

It is found that there is quite a common prejudice against college graduates in some circles. The trouble is that the young men come out of college thinking they know too much. They are unwilling to learn.

A business friend of my acquaintance said that he did not want any professionally educated bookkeepers. He preferred young people of common sense with no experience who were willing to learn to keep books in his own way.

There are some wives that are hard to live with because they are too perfect. They are too good and too faultless. It is hard to live on daily terms of intimacy with an angel. We need some evidence of human frailty to keep us together.

A mother is often concerned over her children because they do not show extraordinary ability. A talent of any kind, whether in music, or public speaking, or acting, or painting, is a dangerous qualification. The best assurance of a contented and successful life is not to have any gift in excess, but to have all the qualities perfectly balanced.

By the same token that it is hard for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, it is hard for any man of extraordinary gifts to be loved as he should be.

To claim virtuosity in anything is to invite prejudice against us. If we claim to be the glass of fashion and the mold of form our least departure from the rules of etiquette will be noticed. If we make no claims it will not cause much comment if we make a mistake.

Humility has been much spoken of. But it is sometimes forgotten how great an asset it is in the matter of love. People like humble folk. It is true with humility as with nothing else that those who take the lowest seats shall be invited up higher.

There is an inferiority complex at work in us all that prevents us from admiring a superior person.

If you have any virtue therefore, it is a good thing to conceal it as a vice for the benefit of your fellows.

THE ABERRATION OF THE SUN

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"If it takes eight minutes for a ray of light to reach the earth from the sun, it must follow that the actual location of the sun at any time is about two degrees westward of its apparent location. This is certainly an interesting topic and I should be delighted to have you discuss it in one of your articles.—A. W. W., Quincy, Mass."

YOUR idea is picturesque, but mistaken.

Inasmuch as, in consequence of the earth's daily rotation on its axis, the sun appears to advance about 15 degrees westward every hour, or one-quarter of a degree in a minute, you infer that in eight minutes (the time required for light to come to the earth), the sun must have moved two degrees, or nearly four times its own diameter, away from the place in the sky that it appears to occupy.

Why this inference is wrong may best be understood from a little diagram. The change of direction in which the sun is seen depends upon the length of the base-line formed by the change of place of the observer.

Suppose the place of the sun in the sky at any time to be indicated by the line from the center of the earth through the point on its surface "b," while its place eight minutes later is indicated by the line through the point "a."

Slight Change

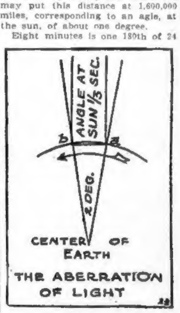
Then the change in direction of the sun with reference to the observer will not be measured by the larger angle at the earth's center, but by the very small angle, at the sun, subtended by the distance between "a" and "b."

Because of the difficulty of representing a small angle, the change in the sun's apparent position, as drawn in the diagram, is much larger than two degrees. But if we make the calculation on the basis of 2 degrees, which would be the angular change in eight minutes, we find that the base line 'a-b" is only about 140 miles, and 140 miles from the sun's distance, 93,000 miles, would subtend an angle of only about one-third of a second of arc, which is less than one 5700th part of the sun's angular diameter!

But there is another more important effect of the same kind brought about by another cause, viz. the change in the earth's position, due to its annual revolution around the sun. This causes the sun to advance eastward about one degree every twenty-four hours.

This change of direction has for its base-line the distance traveled by the earth during twenty-four hours. We may put this distance at 1,600,000 miles, corresponding to an agle, at the sun, of about one degree.

Eight minutes is one 180th of 24 hours, and one degree divided by 180 gives 20 seconds of arc for the change in the sun's position during the time its light is passing to the earth.



THE ABERRATION OF LIGHT

Even this, although it is 60 times greater than the maximum change produced by the earth's rotation, is but little more than a hundredth of the sun's angular diameter.

Affected Alike

The apparent positions of all celestial bodies are alike affected by the ratio between the velocity of light and the speed of the earth in its orbit.

This ratio is about 10,000 to 1, which corresponds in angular measure to about 20 seconds of arc (accurately 20.47), which is called the aberration constant. By means of the aberration constant the sun's distance can be calculated.

The aberration caused by the earth's revolution is "annual aberration," that resulting from its rotation is "diurnal aberration."

WHEN YOUR SINS ARE FOUND OUT, WHAT IS YOUR GAIN?

As long as you can keep secret your shady actions you feel that there is little use in trying to abstain from your wrongdoing.

It is the thought of being found out which worries you.

Yet you have been smooth enough to cover your tracks so far; therefore you feel there is little likelihood of discovery.

The jails and the prisons are full of men of such ideas.

You think some time you will reform and follow the straight and narrow path, but you put it off from day to day.

There is a certain goal you want to reach before you make a change in your principles.

A few more fruitful undertakings and you will have reached the posititon for which you are working.

And as you go on you take still greater chances because you want to get still greater results.

If you should get caught—and you will eventually—what then?

SOME AMERICANS go to Europe with money and enterprise on the right basis. Mr. Dillon, of Dillon, Read & Co., now in London, is planning a one hundred and fifty million dollar subway system, in which "British capital will participate to a small extent."

THE SHUBERTS of New York have six theatres in London, and will get more. That's the right way for American business men to help Europe—by going over with their money and showing how the thing should be done.

MR. DILLON plans to construct subways for trucks, to relieve traffic congestion on the surface. The same enterprise would be welcomed in American cities, especially in New York, where the stagnation point in congestion has almost been reached.

A DEVOUT READER, disturbed by the fact that passages from the Bible appear to suggest that the earth is flat and square, will find in Isaiah, most magnificent of all the old Biblical writers, a text that will satisfy him:

"It is He that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers; that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in."

You will notice that Isaiah speaks of "The circle of the earth," which would indicate a round earth. Chapter and verse are not given. Everybody should read all of Isaiah, and Job, also, at least once a year.

THE GOVERNMENT offers some worthless ships, rusting away at anchor, costing large sums for watchmen.

Henry Ford offers $1,706,000 for them. He would scrap them and use the metal, and his offer is far higher than any other.

But some conscientious official offers the suggestion that it may not be legal to sell ships if they are to be junked.

TOO BAD THAT man with a conscience was not around when the navy's oil lands were so neatly disposed of. It's extraordinary how active the official conscience becomes when an honest man offers to pay the government an honest price, and how soundly the conscience sleeps when government property is being taken.

A YOUNG MAN named Scott in Illinois is waiting to be hanged. His mother says she will kill herself at the exact hour of her son's hanging. Scott's father says, "My son's soul died last week, just before he was to have been hanged."

THAT STATEMENT is new in America, but old in literature. In his Hell, Dante shows spirits in torment whose bodies were still alive, walking the streets of Florence when he left the surface. It is explained to Dante that many souls go to hell before their bodies die so that their punishment may begin sooner.

THE MATERIAL facts concerning Scott, sentenced to death for murder, are these: Under our prohibition system Scott got drunk and killed a man. If he is hanged the bootlegger that sold him the whiskey should be hanged beside him.

MR. ALDRICH, prosperous lawyer, is sued for divorce. His wife alleges cruelty. He replies, "My only cruelty was almost stoning her to death with

FIRE MENACES 8 MEN ENTOMBED IN MINE

Rockwood, Tenn., July 24 (A.P.).—A holocaust threatened here today as fire, which had smouldered in the heart of the Roane Iron Company mine for four days, swept away the barriers and gnawed its way toward the spot where eight men were entombed by an explosion.

Rescue workers, who labored throughout the day and night to reach the imprisoned men, cast aside all hope of finding them alive.

Relief workers brought to the surface two of the miners who were in the mine when the blast occurred.

They aparently had been killed instantly. Members of the rescue party said their bodies had been blown 800 feet by the explosion.

VICTIMS OF BRUTAL CRIME HAD WEALTH HIDDEN IN COTTAGE

Hudson, N. H., July 24.—Information that Miss Helen Gillis, eighty, and her sister, Miss Georgianna, seventy-seven, brutally slain in their cottage here, were wealthy, in spite of their frugal living, and kept large sums of money in the house, convinced police today that robbery was the motive of the crime.

One theory is that the sisters were slain by someone to whom they gave temporary shelter from the torrential storm of Wednesday.

Another is that two strange men in a dilapidated automobile, who left town suddenly Wednesday night, learned of the reported wealth of the sisters and took advantage of the storm to kill and rob them.

HANGING

REPRIEVE COMES AS SURPRISE

for springing a week ago, stood without its victim and jail officials who had left it standing during the week of grace were considering dismantling it. The sanity hearing will not come for several days, Judge David indicating he cannot hear it before Monday, August 3.

Almost at the same time the stay was granted, word came from Port Huron, Mich, that Robert Scott, the condemned man's brother, had been staying in that city, but had left about 2 o'clock this morning, declaring that he was going to Chicago.

Scott's escape from death today, like a week ago, came after he and his relatives had virtually abandoned hope. Thomas Scott, his father, had called at the jail three hours previously to bid him a last farewell, the second such visit in a week.

Mrs. Catherine Scott, his faithful wife, who for weeks fought to obtain a commutation, played what she believed to be her final card in Springfield, where she appeared before the pardon board and when the stay was granted was rushing from Springfield to Chicago by automobile to bid her husband farewell almost at the minute of his execution. She arrived to find the court action stopping the hanging.

SCOTT IS SURPRISED.

Scott, who had been surly and defiant throughout the night, and who apparently was completely resigned to his fate, received the news that his life was spared, at least temporarily, with considerable surprise. He had known nothing about the last minute appeal to the courts.

"I'm tickled to death," were his first words.

Then, upon learning that the stay had been granted to find out whether he were sane, Scott added:

"I am no more crazy than the judge who granted me a stay on that account. I am not asking for any sympathy from any one, either. I am innocent."

Scott's sudden and unexpected escape from the gallows was as dramatic, in its way, as the desperate last-minute efforts in his behalf a few hours previous that had proved so unsuccessful.

WOMEN HIRE LAWYERS.

New counsel, hastily summoned yesterday by Scott's friends, hurried to Springfield, where they met the Governor and Board of Pardons and presented a plea for a reprieve, attacking some of the State's witnesses and maintaining that they had uncovered new leads which they had not had time to develop.

The board, however, refused further clemency and Governor Small concurred in the action, pointing out that Scott already had received two reprieves.

Upon receiving this news, which apparently sealed Scott's fate, Mrs. William McGraw and Mrs. Isobel Hurst, both of Detroit, representing Detroit club women who raised $5,000 for Scott's defence, hastily retained William Scott Stewart, noted criminal lawyer, who recently successfully defended William D. Shepherd, accused of the murder of Billy McClintock.

Stewart it was who conceived the idea of asking for a stay of execution, an action similar to that taken three years ago to save from the gallows Gene Geary, notorious gunman, whose execution was stayed while his sanity was tested. Later he was sent to an asylum.

MIDNIGHT SESSION.

At midnight, their last desperate step decided on, Scott's friends and Stewart started their hunt for a judge to issue the stay. Judge David, called from his bed, agreed to call a session of court if his bailiff and clerk could be found. Then, with the minutes ticking away, clerk and bailiff were rushed to the County Building, where in a dimly lighted court room on the tenth floor the hearing was held.

A group of newspaper men, the judge, the attorneys, Scott's friends and his aged father made up the gathering.

The petition, signed by Scott's father, recited that the condemned man has become insane since his incarceration fifteen months ago in the county jail.

After asking a few perfunctory questions, Judge David announced that he would sign the order, and within twenty minutes from the time court had been convened, the stay of execution had been granted.

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, was not present, or represented, and apparently did not know of it.

George R. E. Gorman, his assistant, who prosecuted Scott, when informed of the action, said:

"I have not a thing to say, except that they tried to fool the Governor a week ago and now they are trying to make a fool out of Judge David. We will fight it to the end. This man deserves the rope and he will get it before we are through."

GROUNDS OF INSANITY.

One of the reasons assigned by Attorney Stewart for believing Scott insane was his refusal last night to broadcast by radio an appeal to his brother, Robert Scott, indicted with him, but never apprehended, to surrender and save him from the gallows. A microphone had been placed in Scott's cell, but he refused to utilize it.

Scott, it developed today, issued a last-minute statement last night to a newspaper, reaffirming his innocence and stating that his hanging "will be a great crime committed in the name of the law by the State of Illinois."

Explaining his wish to spend his last few hours alone, as he insisted on doing, the note said:

"I need these last few hours to try and remove the bitterness and anger from my heart against those who are deliberately responsible for this awful injustice. This is going to be very, very hard. God have mercy on them, not only for this which they do to me, but for the unspeakable and indescribable suffering and anguish they bring on those who love me."

FIRST ADMITTED GUILT.

Scott's case within the last few months has risen to dramatic heights that have aroused the interest of the entire country.

On April 2, 1924, Joseph Maurer, a nineteen-year-old drug clerk, was shot to death in the holdup of a drug store. The next day Russell Scott was arrested for the murder. Later he, with his brother Robert, was indicted.

Scott, thirty years old, and at one time promoter of a $30,000,000 bridge to connect Detroit and Windsor, Ont., and later author of books on business ethics, actor, bootlegger and robber, at first pleaded guilty on the advice of a young attorney assigned to defend him.

When the court indicated that the death penalty would be pronounced, Scott and his attorney burst into tears and asked to be allowed to withdraw the plea. Upon a technical error the request was granted and Scott stood trial.

Testifying in his own defence, he maintained that his brother Robert, and not he, fired the shots and that they were fired during a drinking party in the drug store and not in a holdup.

DRY CHIEF INDICTED IN 'SACRAMENTAL WINE PLOT'

DIVORCES HIS 'YANKEE DUCHESS' FOR RIVAL

Duchess of Manchester, former Helen Zimmerman of Cincinnati, who has been divorced by England's "prodigal peer" in France. It is understood the Duke will now wed a poor but pretty London maid—a modern "Cinderella." Great secrecy vested the Duke's divorce. The couple have long lived apart.

MANCHESTER PLANS TO WED 'CINDERELLA'

Paris, July 24.—The Nice courts have seen the end of the "Zimmerman-Manchester romance" which began many years ago when a Cincinnati girl became the bride of the Duke of Manchester, affectionately known in trans-Atlantic society as "Kim," Britain's prodigal peer.

While only meagre hints seep through from the star chamber divorce court of the Riviera town where French law forbids even a whisper of the actual facts in marital separation suits, I am informed that this time it is the duke who secures a divorce from the former Helena Zimmerman, from whom he has been separated for many years.

The name of the co-respondent was as usual kept secret.

As soon as the decree becomes final the Duke of Manchester, I am told, will marry in Paris Kathleen Dawes, a beautiful London girl.

Herein lies another romance. It is currently known in society circles of London and Paris that "Kim" could have married any one of at least six wealthy American heiresses. To them all, however, he has preferred to lay his heart and title—and fortune, such as it is—at the feet of a comparatively unknown and certainly poor London girl: an action refreshingly at variance with the tactics of the average European nobleman, who asks to see the bank account first and the girl afterwards.

The Duchess recently said she still liked the Duke, but he was too expensive, even if he were an English nobleman.

In recent years, His Grace has been busily engaged finding means of alleviating financial stringency.

In 1923 he was compelled to cancel his sailing to England from Montreal because of an unpaid board bill. The Duke lived in great style in the Mount Royal Hotel there. There was a matter of a $1,438 hotel bill.

He was prevented from leaving Canada by the authorities. Later he was allowed to proceed to New York, where he raised the money and paid the bill.

At one time the Duke desired to take a fling in motion pictures, but this venture fell through.

SLAIN SISTERS HID FORTUNE IN COTTAGE

From Professor Charles Ladd Norton of Technology, who has known the "Gillis girls," as he calls them, for many years, came the information that they owned a considerable amount of land and were known to keep most of their money in their house.

Professor Norton formerly spent Summers with the two sisters, and his mother spent vacations with them for many years.

The sheltered stranger, those holding to the first theory believe, saw Miss Georgianna turn from her preparation of supper to conceal a roll of money as a precaution with a stranger in the house.

He then watched his chance and crept behind her to fell her as she was mixing batter for cake in the pantry. As he was committing the brutal crime, the other sister, whose clothing showed she had been out, entered the cottage and was also slain, according to their version of the tragedy.

POLICE SEEK FINGER PRINTS.

A flatiron, upon which the authorities found a smooch similar to a blood stain, is thought to have been the weapon. A firewood log also bore a dark, red stain and this also is being examined for finger-print clews.

A thorough search of nooks and crannies in the house has failed to reveal any hidden sums of money, including $80 which the sisters are known to have had on hand.

Questioning of local men, women and children who may be able to throw some light on the movements of the two sisters on Wednesday, was carried on today by County Solicitor George Hazelton, Sheriff John T. O'Dowd, Chief of Police Harry Connell of Hudson, Chief Irving Goodwin of Nashua and two Nashua police inspectors.

Investigating authorities believe they have traced the mysterious old automobile to Keene, N. H. They learned that the two men arrived in town Wednesday and left the car in the garage of Charles House, not far from the murder scene, expressing their intention of remaining two or three days.

Late Wednesday night they took the car, while House slept, and left town, leaving behind them one of their spare tires. Apparently they left in a great hurry.

AUTO LICENSE CLUE.

Miss Hilda Young, seventeen, saw the men and she and House furnished the police with descriptions. The men remarked they were headed for Keene. Miss Young told the police the serial number of the license was 68 ——.

The murder, the authorities believe, was committed not later than 4:30 Wednesday afternoon, twenty-four hours before the bodies were discovered by two neighbors of the slain sisters, Mrs. Margaret Center and Mrs. Gertrude Locke.

An autopsy to establish the time more definitely, if possible, and to ascertain other features in preparation for the inquest, was made by State Pathologist Dincan and Medical Referee Bernard G. Moran, both of Nashua.

SEVERAL QUESTIONED.

A Nashua grocer and his clerks were looked up for questioning after the police learned from a stack of bills on a spindle in the cottage that one of the sisters paid a grocery bill as late as Wednesday morning.

An itinerant pedlar was also sought. Others questioned were Charles LeFavre, fourteen-year-old boy, employed as a chore boy by the Gillis sisters, and his father, who often called in a carriage in the evening to take him home.

Young LeFevre was one of the few persons, other than small children, who were frequently at the Gillis cottage. He can shed light on their activities, it is believed.

Examination was made today of the entire house, furniture and other articles for bloodstains and fingerprints, and several logs, a poker and other objects were taken for closer inspection.

George Andrews, a boy who was said to have given a lift in his automobile to a salesman on Wednesday, was also interviewed. There was a report that one or two persons were seen close to the Gillis cottage during the rainstorm of Wednesday, but police were unable at first to check up on this information.

At first the police believed the double slaying was the work of Memitrios Paptonikrious, a former Nashua resident, who escaped from the State Hospital for the Insane at Concord on Monday. The escaped lunatic is a dangerous man, but authorities are almost certain he had nothing to do with the crime here.

A few hours before the sisters were slain the two men in the ramshackle automobile drove into Hudson. They were seen in the vicinity of the home of the sisters, and later they drove their car to a garage near the Hudson home. The men asked the proprietors of the garage if they could store their car in his place for several days, as they had business to attend to. The car was driven in the garage, and the men disappeared.

MUSICIAN TELLS OF PICKWICK CRASH

whether I felt the building trembling under and over me. But I do know there was no sound save the sound of the violins and the shuffling of the feet of the dancers."

The witness described his own escape, the escape of some of his acquaintances, the cries of pain and bewilderment from the victims.

He said he was hired by "Timmy" Barry. Barry is one of the twelve defendants.

GLENNON TESTIFIES.

William F. Glennon of No. 86 Marcella street, Roxbury, one of the musicians at the club, was the first witness.

Glennon, a tall, dark haired young man, is the brother of James Glennon, the club floor manager, who was killed and wore a black suit and black tie, in mourning.

He testified that he had worked as a member of the club orchestra since last November. He was taken for direct examination by Assistant District Attorney Alpert.

Q.—Did you work continuously at the Pickwick Club? A.—With the exception of one week, after a fire.

Q.—When was that? A.—I don't remember the date.

Q.—Was it in April last? A.—It may have been.

WATER COVERED FLOOR.

Q.—Some weeks after the fire and just after a rainstorm, did you notice something? A.—The dance floor was covered with water.

Q.—How much water was on the floor? A.—Not more than a half inch, I should say.

Q.—Who operated the club? A.—Just the owners, so far as I knew.

Objections were offered by counsel for the defence. The answer was stricken from the records.

Q.—Who hired you? A.—Timmy Barry.

Judge Lummus—Do you mean one of the defendants here? A.—Yes.

Q.—After the rain that night what did you notice about the floor. A.—It was all wet.

Q.—Did you remember the date? A.—No.

Q.—Was it on June 29? A.—No.

DANCING AREA.

Q.—Where was the dancing area on the floor? A.—It was in the front toward Beach street, but had formerly been on the rear where the bar was.

Q.—When was it changed? A.—Two months before the collapse.

Q.—How large was the dancing area? A.—About 15 feet wide and 25 to 30 feet long.

Q.—What occupied the rest of the space? A.—Tables, and then the bar in the rear and the orchestra back near the bar. The orchestra took up about 10 feet of the space.

Q.—Were you o nduty on July 3? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many tables were in the club on that date? A.—About 40.

Q.—Weren't there 60?

Counsel for defence objected and the question was excluded.

Q.—Will you give us your best judgment as to the number of tables that night? A.—About 40.

Q.—You testified before the grand jury, did you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you testify then that there were 60 to 75 tables? A.—I don't recall ever saying there were 75 tables.

Q.—Do you recall testifying there were 60 tables? A.—I never said there were 75.

Q.—Did you testify there were 60? A.—Possibly I did, around 60. But I don't know whether I did or not.

Q.—What's your best judgment now? A.—Forty tables.

Q.—How many persons were at the club on the night of July 3? A.—About 100 or 125.

Q.—Were that number there at the time of the collapse? A.—I don't know.

Q.—What was the time of the collapse? A.—It was 3:45 or 3:50.

LIGHT WENT OUT.

Q.—How many persons were in the club at the time of the collapse? A.—About 100.

Q.—What did you notice? A.—One of the lights near the piano went out.

Q.—Did you see Davis there? A.—Yes, he was standing over near the wall.

Q.—Where were out? A.—I was standing near the piano.

Q.—What was Davis doing? A.—He was holding out his hand.

Q—As if he were catching something? A—Yes. I asked him— (the rest of the answer was striken out.

Q—Did you hear anything when you saw him hold out his hand? A—No.

Judge Lummus—Did you observe anything happening at that time? A—No.

Q—Did you put your hand out after Davis did? A—I did.

Q—Did you hear anything? A—Nothing unusual.

Q—Did you feel anything? A—No.

Q.—Did you hear anything like rain? A.—Not at that time.

Q.—Did you so testify before the Grand Jury? Oo. I heard that sound about a minute later.

Counsel for the defence objected, in chorus, to the references to the Grand Jury transcript. Judge Lummus cautioned Assistant District Attorney Alpert that the use of the Grand Jury records was not warranted in the circumstances.

BOY KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK

living at No. 53 Crescent avenue, Chelsea, sprang to safety just in time. He felt the wheels of the truck graze his heels as he jumped.

The only explanation Salvatore had of the peculiar accident was that he swung over to the sidewalk to avoid driving down a smaller car.

After striking the boys the big truck, heavily loaded, bowled along the sidewalk for seventy-five feet or more before he could halt it.

Five Salem children were treated at Salem Hospital during the past twenty-four hours as a result of automobile accidents, caused chiefly by the youngsters running out into the streets and being knocked down. The condition of none of them is serious.

While Rosa K. Fleming of No. 8 Bertram street was driving along Pleasant street towards Washington square, an Eastern Massachusetts electric car was approaching in the opposite direction. George Crossley, eight years old, of No. 17 Pleasant street, Salem, ran from behind the car in front of the automobile and was struck by the machine, being thrown about twenty feet.

While Paul L. Auger of No. 21 Roslyn street, Salem, was operating his automobile on Foster street, Floyd Simmons, twelve years old, of No. 128 North street, ran from a yard onto the street directly in front of Auger's car. He was struck by the rear left wheel and his leg badly crushed.

While Stanley Bliss, ice wagon driver, was delivering ice to a house in Becket street, six-year-old Peter Savdowsky, riding a bicycle, ran into the team, and was cut about the head and face.

SAYS 'IRON INK' WAS USED IN BIBLE ENTRY

have Professor Gill perform a chemical analysis of the fly-leaf on the witness stand, was objected to by former Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

Attorney Allen, senior counsel for Mrs. Ida M. Blankenburg, claiming to be a daughter of Lotta Crabtree, declared that the court had no authority to permit an analysis in such non-scientific surroundings.

The analysis was side-tracked temporarily when the judge reserved ruling on the teset.

"IRON INK" IS CLAIMED.

Professor Gill, first witness of the day, and resuming where he left off in testifying yesterday, was asked by Attorney Hoy:

"Quite independently of an examination that may be made, have you an opinion whether the entry in the Crabtree Bible is of recent date?" "I have," the Professor answered.

"Independently of an examination, have you an opinion of the character of the ink used in making that entry?" "I have."

"What are those opinions?" "First, the entry is of recent date and the ink is an iron ink."

"Have you an opinion, independent of chemical analysis, whether the paper was treated to make it look old?" "I have an opinion that it was so treated."

HINTS AT TAMPERING.

"When did you examine the paper for the first time?" "July 6."

"When did you examine it again?" "Yesterday."

"Has there been any change in the appearance of the paper between the first and second examinations?" "Yes. On the first examination the ink lines were surrounded with more or less of a transparent substance, and around them were observed blue patches. My examination yesterday showed that both the transparent substance and the bluish lines had disappeared, which leads me to believe that the chemical used in ageing the paper had passed off."

"Does the document today show evidence of having been tampered with?" "Yes."

At this point, Judge Prest, at the request of Attorney Hoy, gave Professor Gill permission to make chemical analysis of the fly-leaf on the witness stand.

DENIES PICTURE STORY.

Attorney Allen immediately objected and, after a bit of controversy, the analysis was shelved temporarily in favor of further testimony.

It was disclosed today in connection with the trial that Judge Frederic P. Chase of counsel for administrators of the Crabtree estate has denied statements printed two days ago, alleging introduction of a photograph from the Lotta Crabtree effects.

This photo, in the statements, purported to have been identified by Mrs. Blankenburg as one of Ann Jane and John William Crabtree. Judge Chase asserted that the photograph never had been Lotta Crabtree's possession, but was introduced by Mrs. Blankenburg herself.

HUB FOLK OFF FOR MURIEL'S WEDDING

been previously to exceed this marriage of Muriel, "the perfect girl," to Freddie, "the Greek god," even from whose college pipe at Harvard came rings to encircle his brow as an athlete.

Today in Boston marked also the departure for Newport of many Hub folks, picked by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2d, leader of society's flock, to be included in the 200 wedding guests who henceforth will be gazed upon and envied as the only successors to the "original 400" of three-decades ago.

MANY GUESTS FROM HUB.

By motor, rail and yacht the Bostonians squared away for the crowning function opening the second half of the 1925 social calendar. And at the last moment tomorrow, those others of the Hub guests who have been held in town until the deadline will rush to Newport, to arrive as the triumphal wedding procession begins.

Journeying to Newport today from Boston, among others, were Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fletcher, John M. Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Abbott of Boston and Westford; Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stephens.

Tomorrow there will arrive, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Humphrey of Boston, Mrs. Richard Humphrey who comes from a friend's Summer home at Narragansett Pier; Mrs. W. L. Clements of Hyannisport, and others.

Of the eight ushers who will serve at the nuptials, five are Boston men and some are former classmates of the bridegroom-to-be at Harvard.

The ushers are Russell S. Codman, Jr., Robert Emmons, 3d, Robert Lancaster, Richard S. Humphrey, James Otis, Robert Payne and Lawrence Van Ingen.

WEDDING PLANS SECRET.

Freddie Church, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church of Lowell, are quartered at the Muenchinger-King, made reservations for his assistants at the Muenchinger-King cottage. The remaining three ushers are from New York.

Best man at the wedding will be Richard G. Payne, but so tight a veil of secrecy has been drawn around the plans that the strict makeup of the nuptial procession is, more than a little, one of speculation.

It is understood that pretty Muriel will be given in marriage by her father, William K. Vanderbilt 2d, who is now installed as the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Goadby Loew at Stone Acre.

Consuelo Vanderbilt is down in the expectations of most Newport dwellers as the most logical choice for maid of honor and as Muriel's sole attendant.

Although the bride-to-be was reared in the Catholic faith, she will be married by the Rt. Rev. Herbert Shipman, suffragan bishop of New York, and the Rev. Stanley C. Huhes, rector of Trinity Church of Newport, Episcopal.

PLANS ARE SIMPLIFIED.

It is partly because of the mixed religious ceremony, it is understood, that the wedding plans have been simplified as much as possible with a society nuptial that is looked forward to from the time of setting the date.

Beach Mound, the estate of Benjamin Thaw, at the end of Bellevue avenue, and one of the most beautiful and pretentious properties in all Newport's Summer playground, has been selected as the setting for the biggest moment in pretty Muriel's life.

The Thaw estate has been taken by Mrs. Vanderbilt for the Summer and today it hummed with activity, a picture of charm and green-striped awning in sight of the rolling blue of the sea, waiting for the first strains of the wedding march.

In the spirit of "the night before" a Harvard-Yale game, social functions in all varieties and a whirl of visiting are carded for tonight.

night, to end on the rim of tomorrow's dawn—thence the guests to bed for a brief respite before the Dancing will go well through the wedding at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Following the ceremony will be held the reception, and then comes the ball at the Harry Payne Whitney villa in Bellevue avenue, not far from Beach Mound.

But, long before the last note of music dies away at the ball, the new Mr. and Mrs. Church—"Greek God" and "Society's Perfect Girl"—will be well on their way to Saratoga Springs and the honeymoon.

Other details of the wedding are to be found on Page 6 and an interesting picture on Page 3.

MARINE FLIER SAVED AS PLANE FALLS IN LAKE

Sarnia, Ont., July 24 (A.P.)—Lieutenant Harmon J. Norton of the U. S. Marine Corps at Selfridge Field had a narrow escape from drowning when the airplane he was piloting over Lake St. Clair plunged into the water when its fuel supply gave out. Lieutenant Norton was picked up by the dredge steamer Thomas A. Lees after he was almost exhausted from swimming in his heavy flyer's suit. His plane was also brought to port by the Lees.

2 TRAPPED AS POLICE PLUG RUM 'DUMPS'

A two-year game of hide-and-seek which the members of the Boston headquarters liquor squad have been conducting with Samuel Cassler and Morris Cohen of No. 8 Compton street, South End, ended in the police scoring their first point today.

The police have known for months that the men were dispensing liquor, but although more than a dozen raids were made on the place, the latest on Wednesday morning, nothing was ever found on the premises.

A two-gallon dump, set in the floor of the place and connected directly with the sewer gave the men ample time to dispose of their liquor while the officers were battering in the door.

DUMP PLUGGED.

Exasperated by their repeated failures, the dry sleuths finally decided on a bold course. During the night they forced their way into the cellar under the building, disconnected the liquor dump and plugged up one end, so that liquor thrown in the dump could not run out.

At daybreak today the officers took up their watch. Twenty men called at the place between 5:20 and 6:10 a. m. Then the officers, when satisfied the partners were in the midst of their early morning business, forced their way into the place. The partners frantically began dumping the liquor into the hole in the floor. The officers laughed.

PUT UP BATTLE.

Then the men put up a terrific battle and for half an hour they gave the six policemen a tussle, not being subdued until their clothes were torn off.

The police secured forty half-pints and three pints of "alky splits" in the raid, in addition to the stuff they recovered from the plugged dump. The partners are in court today, charged with keeping and exposing.

The policemen in the raid were Officers Garrett, Daleu, Fortin, Welby, Robinson and Sheehan.

AIRSHIP-BATTLESHIP TEST TARGET LOCKED UP

Norfolk, Va., July 24 (A.P.)—A fifty-foot target sleeve, wit han undisclosed number of holes in it, was held under lock for confidential inspection at the naval base here today—and with it the answer to what may happen when battleship meets dirigible. The target, resembling a minature dirigible, trailed at the end of a 2,000-foot wire from the dirigible Shenandoah while the anti-aircraft guns of the battleship Texas blazed away at it. When the tests were completed the Shenandoah returned from off the Virginia capes, dropped the target at the naval base, and it was quickly retrieved to be rushed off in an automobile to the ordnance depot where it was locked up.

ARTIST GIANT DROWNED TRYING TO SAVE WOMAN

Biarritz, France, July 24 (A.P.).—William Jemmett, one of three persons drowned near here, was a crayon portrait artist of London, known as the "Chelsea Giant" because he was six feet ten inches tall. Mrs. Williams, an English woman, was drowned while sea bathing and Jemmett and Paul Forquet lost their lives attempting to rescue her. Froquet was a noted life saver, with more than forty rescues to his credit. He had warned bathers against going in the sea because waves were running high.

NEW ENGLAND GAINS STEADY, SAYS BANKER

Declaring that it is only pessimists who insist New England is decaying commercially, James J. Phelan of Hornblower & Weeks, investment bankers, today presented figures to prove that, in the 37 years of his experience, the section has shown a steady commercial growth.

Bank deposits, imports, exports, manufactured products, agriculture, all show a healthy growth, according to Mr. Phelan, whose announcement is in keeping with the movement to boom New England, now under way.

In presenting his figures to the public, Mr. Phelan said:

"To satisfy myself, from a statistical angle, that I have not been rocking myself to sleep in the cradle of blind optimism, I have made comparison of certain statistics bearing on New England, between the year 1887, when I first entered State Street, and 1924.

MAKING PROGRESS.

"I think anyone who will take the pains to examine and study them can come to no other conclusion than that New England is not "slipping," but on the contrary, is making continuous and substantial progress.

"Of course, this progress will not show relatively as big on a percentage basis as do the newer sections of the country, nor, as our gross figures grow larger, show the per cent. of increase compared to the whole country as they did when other sections of the country were new and undeveloped, so to speak.

"With these statistics I give the source of information. I would point out that where I refer to savings banks deposits for the purpose of comparison I do not include savings deposits of national banks, trust companies or the postal savings, as there were few, if any, of these kinds of savings deposits in the year 1887.

POPULATION STEADY.

"I would specifically point out that apparently there are as many people who believe New England is as good a section to live and thrive in as any section of the country. The percentage of population of New England in 1887 as compared to that of the whole country was 7.4 per cent.

"The percentage of population of New England compared with the rest of the country is today 7 per cent., or practically the same."

2 HELD IN CHELSEA RUM CLEANUP DRIVE

Arrested in Mac's Garage, Fourth street, Chelsea, Daniel A. Murphy and Morris Bert White, alias Morris Albert, were held for hearing by United States Commissioner Jenney charged with conspiracy to smuggle.

It is expected that Murphy will be a central figure in the present investigation. It is said that more than 100 warrants have been issued for liquor arrests in Chelsea.

GOVERNOR ASKS RETURN OF ESCAPED LUNATIC

A request on the Governor of West Virginia for the return to Massachusetts of John Mojeck, an escaped inmate from the Northampton State Hospital, was made by Governor Fuller.

The man escaped nine months ago and after his escape wrote several threatening letters to officials at the State House.

DIVORCEE TO SHUN OLD HOME

Mary Converse, Who Wed Ex-Convict, Will Remain Out West, Probably in Colorado

Back here in the conservative Bay State society might never get to sympathize with the romantic impulse that led pretty Mary Converse of the Malden and Cap Cod Converses to marry Charley Essick, ex-convict, five years ago.

So Mary Converse-Essick, happily divorced after five years of misery, is not coming to her childhood home to pick up the threads of life again.

Just now she is in Portland, Ore., or on her way there, and very likely she will stay there.

In case she decides to leave, she undoubtedly will settle in Colorado, where her mother has a ranch.

MOTHER IN CALIFORNIA.

At the home of Mrs. Essick's mother in Marion, on the Cape, it was said today that Mrs. Converse had gone to California. They confirmed the story that the daughter of the house did not plan to return.

Relatives of Mrs. Essick, sympathizing with her, are understood to feel with her that she will be happier in the West.

She herself has no desire to resume a place in Boston society, which dropped her name from the Social Register after her unfortunate alliance.

Mary Converse Essick is the daughter of the late Colonel Harry E. Converse, millionaire rubber manufacturer of Malden.

Colonel Converse moved from Malden to Cape Cod after Joe Walcott, the negro fighter, took a house not far from his.

HOW SHE MET HIM.

Mary was educated in the finest schools in the East. Like many other young women, she decided she must have a mission. And she decided it was one of social service. She became interested in prison reform. She met Thomas Mott Osborne.

And, indirectly, through him she met Charles Essick, a man of thirty-eight, who had just completed a fifteen-year sentence for a stickup in California, in which, unfortunately for Mr. Essick, the bank messenger was killed.

Telling her he was ready to go straight, and pleading with her not to allow one misstep as a boy to stand in the way of his happiness he won the girl.

The divorce she just secured in Colorado is evidence enough that Essick did not make good on his promises.

BROOKFIELD SHOE PLANT DISMANTLED

Brookfield, July 24. — About an hour after the shoe factory occupied by Daley Brothers' Shoe Company was sold at public auction, it is said, orders were issued by John Daley, president of the company, to start taking out machinery, and soon, all the machines in the cutting an stitching rooms were ready to be stripped.

Daley would make no statement. The firm employed about 150 hands. Daley recently purchased a shoe concern in Keene, N. H.

FOUR GIRLS KILLED STEALING RIDE IN AIR

Berlin, July 24 (A.P.).—Four girls were killed and a man was seriously injured today near Rastatt, Baden, by the fall of an overhead freight conveyor in which they were riding as a lark. The conveyor was suspended from a steel cable running between twoi ndustrial plants and the young peoples lipped into the car as it was to start. About midway the cableb roke.

EXCUSES WIFE WHO FORGOT INSANE MAN

London, July 24 (I.N.S.)—Justice Swift today granted a divorce to Nathaniel Box, who is detained in an insane asylum. Box charged his wife forgot her vows after his detention.

"It is not surprising," said Justice Swift, in granting the divorce, "that the poor woman after a decent interval formed a new union."

U. S. SAILORS IN MOVIE CRASH IN AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Australia, July 24 (A.P.).—One hundred and thirteen persons were injured, some of them seriously, when the veranda of a moving picture theatre collapsed during a parade of sailors of the visiting American Fleet here today. No one was killed and none of the American sailors was hurt.

A record crowd turned out to welcome the bluejackets, and many hundreds of people crowded onto the veranda, cheering enthusiastically. Without warning, the veranda gave way and the spectators were plunged in a heap. The theatre was on Bourke street.

Stamford, Conn., July 24.—Charles Sigsway of South Norwalk was perhaps fatally burned in a fire in the Circle Inn at Darien, which he owned and which had been padlocked for some time because of liquor found there. Sigsway, according to police, was operating a still when an explosion occurred, setting fire to it.

'STYLE' IS FATAL TO MORALS

Editorial in Pilot Declares the Fate of Present Generation Is in Hands of "Good Women"

"Dress that a generation ago would have brought a blush to the cheeks of a fairer and better generation passes today as commonplace on our streets," declares The Pilot, the official organ of the Catholic archdiocese of Boston, in an editorial in its current issue.

In the opinion of the paper, religion and its constructive attributes offers the only remedy to stem the oncoming tide of immodesty in dress.

CAN'T FIX THE CAUSE.

"There is little question," runs the editorial, "but that extreme styles are responsible for a great deal of the moral degradation of our day. Living as we are in an age, when men and women must brush shoulders at the bench, in the workshops, at the counters of our great stores, where both sexes are employed, we must use a great degree of caution lest the poison all about us seep down into our very being, and undermine the guiding principle of our lives.

"Here in America we have the evil just as prominently parading itself as in Europe. Some say demoralization consequent on the ravages of war is responsible for this state of affairs, others attribute it to the modistes of foreign capitals, who are always seeking something new to attract the eyes, and incidentally, to subtract the purse.

"Whatever the cause, the results are deplorable. A chaste generation cannot be reared while laxity in dress stares it in the face. The world may well congratulate itself that from the watchtower of Christendom has flashed the message that immodest dress must pass.

"Catholic women have it in their power, and surely their Church directs them to do it, to overcome this evil and to restore a better order of things.

CANNOT BE IGNORED.

"In their efforts lies a power so tremendous that it can, in large measure, offset an evil already sapping the vitality of the present generation.

"Much preaching and no practicing will never overcome an evil. With determined effort and a mind open to Christian truth and revelation, the subject must be approached.

"The safety of the nation, the home, and the individual makes imperative plain living and high thinking.

"Immodest dress is the foe of both."

Knapp's Double Does Not Relish Resemblance

New York, July 24—There's Philip K. Knapp, the alleged 'thrill slayer'," shouted Detective McCarthy to Detective Cochran, and they seized John Collimore of Fairfield, Conn.

A crowd gathered. Everybody was thrilled except Collimore. "Ever since I left Fairfield, I have been questioned everywhere by ambitious detectives believing I am Knapp."

WALTHAM MAN HURT IN MOTOR CRASH DIES

William M. Edgecomb, twenty-eight, of No. 220 Adams street, Waltham, was instantly killed when his motorcycle collided with a parked automobile in Concord. The accident occurred at Waltham street and Concord avenue.

In the parked machine were Edward McCullough of No. 3 Waverley street, Waltham; his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Spurr; a brother, Allan McCullough, and his wife and their son, Malcolm. They escaped with slight cuts and scratches, although their machine was badly damaged.

PURSUIT PLANE TEST ENDS AT GOLDEN GATE

San Francisco, July 24 (A.P.)—The six army pursuit airplanes sent out from Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., to test the feasibility of the air mail route for military flight purposes arrived at Crissy Field.

AUTO IS WRECKED BY JEALOUS SWEETHEART

Springfield, July 24—Jimmie McCarthy of No. 819 Worthington street, will think twice before he gives a strange young woman a ride again. Last night he accommodated a young woman who wanted an airing.

A short time later apparently a jealous sweetheart of the girl spotted them on the street and signaled for McCarthy to halt the machine. When Jimmie innocently did so, the stranger jumped into the car, completely wrecked the headlights and windshield with a club and departed with the ignition key and the girl.

MRS. HAMILTON WINS DIVORCE AND $8,000

Hamilton of Darien, together with a decree of divorce from Burgoyne Hamilton, wealthy real estate broker of New York City, according to a memorandum of decision filed in Superior Court here. The couple were mareird in 1904 and have two children. Misconduct was charged.

Gas Masks Save Firemen From Ammonia

Gas masks were worn by the crew of Rescue Company No. 1 today in stopping a leak in the ammonia refrigerating system at the Deerfoot Farms Store, No. 172 Tremont street. Ammonia fumes filled the store. Nobody was in the store at the time.

A crowd gathered to watch the masked men at work. They shut off the supply of ammonia and repaired the leak.

TROOPS SLAY MEXICAN ATTACKERS OF WOMEN

Mexico City, July 24.—The newspaper Universal publishes the story of an attack by bandits upon two Syrian women who were peddling goods in the Tampico oil districts in which one was killed and the other injured. Troops, who came upon the bandits during the attack, captured the men and executed them on the spot.

REFUSE TO EMPLOY BEAUTIES

Falmouth Schools' Head Says Old Maids, Not Flappers, Wanted

Hyannis, July 24.—Wanted: Homely women to teach school in Falmouth district. The homelier, the better. No bobbed haired beauties of the flapper type will be considered under any circumstance. If you are even moderately good-looking, don't bother applying.

This is the want ad of Paul Dillingham, superintendent of the Falmouth school district.

The superintendent is a snappy appearing young man himself, and in private life it is possible that he might admire the sprightly lines of eye-filling flappers, but when it comes to school teachers, Superintendent Dillingham wants nothing to do with girls who win bathing beauty prizes, etc., No-sir-e-e.

The superintendent, who is here attending the Summer conference of school superintendents at the Normal school, is not backward about telling his brother superintendents how poor the flapper is as a school teacher, and how much more desirable is the bespectacled, homely old maid, to whom youthful lines, rolled stockings and an occasional cigarette are as remote as the farthermost planet.

ONCE PICKED BEAUTIES.

The superintendent has elucidated at great length on the kind of a teacher he wants. He has told his confreres all about his views. Here is what the dapper young superintendent has to say:

"Several years ago I was urged to secure younger and better looking teachers for the Falmouth schools. I did, but regret it. The trouble is the young graduate of normal school does not know how to restrain herself. If she is good looking she is pestered with the attentions of admirers to the detriment of her work.

"The flapper's extreme style in dress, her cigarette and her petting parties cannot but compromise her discipline. The flapper teacher is a definite problem in our school system. The normal school might correct the tendency of the high school graduate during her teacher training, but does not.

PERSONALITY THE THING.

"It is not that I minimize the benefit to the children in an interesting teacher. I will agree that the good-looking teacher has an asset in her very appearance that is of major importance. Yet the older teacher may offset what she lacks in looks by a good personality. Personality is better than looks. Handsome is that handsome does.

"The boy or girl in our high school cannot but learn that the teacher has been out at unconventional hours, at unconventional places and had acted in an unconventional manner."

UNITARIANS' AID OFFERED IN NEW EVOLUTION SUIT

Capital Fight Faces Defeat on Technical Flaw; Congress May Take Action

Washington, July 24 (A.P.)—Confidence expressed by government counsel that the suit brought here to throw into the Federal courts the whole question of the teaching of evolution can be defeated on technical flaws has caused no apparent discouragement in the evolutionists' camp.

Counsel for Loren H. Wittner, the government employee who brought the proceedings to stop payment of salaries of school officials here on the ground that they were violating a provision of the District of Columbia appropriation bill against teaching of "disrespect" for the Bible, declare they are ready to take other legal steps if the present suit fails.

Wittner and his counsel have failed to enlist the aid of Clarence Darrow, chief defense attorney in the Dayton evolution trial. Mr. Darrow has sent word that he would not "volunteer" in the case.

The defence in the local case has received an offer of legal support from the Unitarian Laymen's League. The announcement of the league's offer declared "Unitarians welcome the results of scientific research as foundation materials for religion."

Announcement that he had no intention of raising the evolution issue in Congress by introducing a bill to prohibit its teaching was made at Swampscott by Representative Taylor of Tennessee. Although he viewed the matter as a fundamentalist, Mr. Taylor said, he believed such action by Congress would do Christianity more harm than good.

Jersey Lassies Spend Novel Vacation Aboard 5-Master, Sailing to Maine

Bangor, Me., July 24.—Two fifteen year old school girls are having a highly novel and enjoyable Summer vacation aboard the five-masted schooner Nancy, which has just finished unloading a cargo of coal brought here from Norfolk.

The girls are Miss Elaine Pearce, daughter of Captain Ernest Pearce, in charge of the schooner, and her schoolmate, Miss Mary Hammond of Montclair, N. J.

The girls, dressed much like boys, explained to reporters that they go aloft and help with the sails, the same as the regular sailors aboard

Quincy Skipper, 76, Is Hero of Storm

Captain Charles Hanley of Quincy, at the wheel of the auxiliary sailboat Valhalla of the Quincy Yacht Club fleet. Although the veteran racing skipper and yacht-builder is 76 years of age, he declined assistance from government boats when the Valhalla's sail was cut to ribbons in a 60-mile gale and her engine rendered useless and came in under a few square yards of canvas.

Seventy-six years young.

That is Captain Charles Hanley, seventy-six years old, veteran yacht builder and racing skipper, of Palmer street, Quincy.

Caught outside Boston Light Wednesday in a 50-mile gale, with sail torn to ribbons, while piloting the auxiliary yacht Valhalla of the Quincy Yacht Club, Captain Hanley declined offers of assistance from the police boat Edwin U. Curtis, a coast guard vessel and a revenue boat.

When the Edwin U. Curtis came alongside with an offer of a tow, Captain Hanley called out:

"We're all right, we're just having a little fun.

"I've never been towed in yet, and I'm not going to begin now," he said.

At that time, with only a handkerchief of a sail left, the Valhalla's lee rail was a foot under water. The seas almost momentarily swept the craft from stem to stern. The engine had been rendered useless owing to the fouling of the propeller by a lobster pot line. After holding the wheel almost ten hours, Captain Hanley brought the craft to the Quincy Yacht Club pier, unaided.

Apprehensive over the failure of the Valhalla to return before nightfall, Commodore Edward J. Kneeland had sent out his Jennie III., flagship of the fleet, in search of the missing yacht.

Captain Hanley's name is known wherever yachts are built or raced. He won nation-wide renown some years ago when, sought out among the most widely known builders, he was asked to design a challenger for the Great Lakes trophy, then held by the Canadians. He built the craft and went north with her to see her through to victory. The Meemer was also the product of his skill and handiwork. Her record need no recounting among yachtsmen.

jewelry." He spent $175,000 on jewelry, gave the lady a $35,000 sable coat, a chinchilla coat costing $8,000, and securities worth $100,000.

THE LADY replies that not sables, not jewels, not securities, not even the fur of the chinchilla, most interesting little animal, can give real happiness.

She's right. But in this world we measure everything with money. The lady's lawyer, George Gordon Battle, demands for her alimony of $75,000 a year. The court can give her that; it cannot give her love and affection.

MEDICAL FIRM IS ROBBED OF LIQUOR

Thieves Make $12,000 Haul In Freight Yards at Lynn

Somewhere in Boston hi-jackers and bootleggers are gloating over 24 barrels of grain alcohol which is the property of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medical Company, according to the police.

The alcohol, 1,200 gallons in all, was stolen from a car being unloaded at the Dennett street freight yards in Lynn, while the Pinkham workmen were at dinner. When the employes returned to work the alcohol was missed.

A watchman employed in the yards saw a truck and several men drive from the yard a few minutes before the workmen returned from dinner.

It is believed Boston liquor thieves learned of the carload of alcohol and kept close watch on the unloading work until the opportunity came for them to make away with a load of the stuff.

The alcohol has a bootleg value of $12,000.

When it's playtime in summer-time and you're thirsty for a drink that is really refreshing

PLAYTIME in summer-time! . . . Fussy foursomes matching scores at the eighteenth hole! . . . Gay groups on spacious club-house verandas. . . . Baseball . . . tennis . . . a sail! . . . A picnic in the cool of some shaded woods . . . a stroll on the boardwalk by a moonlit sea!

Glorious, golden summer! . . . The choicest playtime of the year! . . . Hottest time too! . . . Time when you will appreciate most the goodness of "Canada Dry."

It is the coolest and most refreshing summer-time beverage that has ever been sold in this country.

Down from Canada it came—down from the land of cool green woods and snow-covered trails.

A taste of winter is in every glass! Health! Cheer! Vitality! A cool, glad smile for these humid summer days!

For here is no ordinary ginger ale that owes its popularity solely to a pleasing flavor—wonderful as that is—but a beverage that is genuinely good for you.

It lifts you up mentally and physically! Refreshes! Invigorates! Makes you feel keener! Happier! Better!

The minute you break the golden seal and pour it, cool and dewy, into the tinkling glasses, you will know that at last you have found the ideal summer beverage.

Hold it to the light! See how clear it is! How it gleams and sparkles! How pale and "dry," like a fine old wine!

Here, indeed, is a revelation in ginger ale quality—a delicate, alluring flavor that intrigues your taste—a flavor quite unlike that of any other ginger ale you have ever tasted.

For "Canada Dry" is made from real Jamaica ginger, and is one ginger ale that does not contain capsicum (red pepper) in any form. That is the reason it will not bite the tongue or burn the lips! That is the reason it has none of that "too-sweet" syrupy flavor! That is the reason it leaves no after-taste or recurring "back kick," as some people call it! That is the reason it mixes so delightfully with other beverages! That is the reason it is so genuinely good for you!

The first taste will tell you why this fine old ginger ale has been popular for so many years in Canada—tell you why it has created a sensation ever since it was introduced in this country.

MRS. 'JIMMIE' PUTNAM STIRS NEWPORT IRE

Social Circles Are Miffed Because She Prefers Bar Harbor

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER.
Registered U. S. Patent Office.

New York, July 24.—Those Newporters who labor under the impression they are supreme social beings are a bit miffed over Mrs. James Lowell Putnam's casting anchor on the shores of Mt. Desert Isle, at Bar Harbor, for the torrid season.

Mrs. "Jimmie" is admittedly a decided addition to any resort and Newport feels it is being treated shabbily, for Mrs. "Jimmie" is part and parcel of the Newport set when she is town.

But, like certain other matrons who have refrained from walking in where social cherubims and seraphims fear to tread, the former Eleanor Robinson has steadfastly declined to become a permanent part of the Newport colony and she is, so to speak, playing in "her own back yard," for it must not be forgotten that that amazing person, the late Mrs. John M. Robinson, "gingerized" Bar Harbor back in the days when Harry Lehr was securing for the rival resort (Newport) so much free space in the dailies.

Ever since the death of her brother, Moncure, Mrs. Putnam has passed the Summers wandering about on the Continent and this, unless my memory betrays me, is the first season she has been on this side of the Atlantic since Moncure's passing.

With such energetic hosts and hostesses as the "Ned" Stotesburys, "Jimmie" and Eleanor Putnam and Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Blake already in action on the firing line, Bar Harbor should take on added importance this year.

Five Hub Men to Be Ushers at Church-Vanderbilt Wedding

Preparations for Event Which Interests Smart Set of Boston, New York and Newport Going on Quietly

Betty Alden

NEWPORT, R. I., JULY 24.—MISS MURIEL VANDERBILT, in her favorite white garb of sports mode, played tennis at the Casino while final preparations for her marriage to Frederic Cameron Church of Boston and Lowell go quietly on at Beachmound.

AT THAT STATELY, white-pillared mansion just above Bailey's Beach, awnings of two-toned green are already erected about what Newport calls the addition. They add a varied note of color to the hydrangeas in their enormous blue pots set about the verandas.

TODAY WILL WITNESS the arrival of many of the out-of-town guests. Mr. Church, with reservations for his entourage at the Muenchinger-King cottage, plays host for the five Boston men who serve as ushers and the trio of Gothamites asked for the same duty.

RUSSELL S. CODMAN, JR., of Boston and Manchester, arrives Saturday. Also Richard S. Humphrey, who married Miss Marion Van Buren Emmons of Boston and England in June two years ago. Parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church of Lowell, have a suite at the Muenchinger-King. The Church guests also include John M. Abbott and Edward M. Abbott of Westford; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fletcher of the same town; Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stephens of Lowell, and Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard Pratt. Mrs. W. L. Clements of Hyannis port, Mass., comes on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Humphrey of Boston also arrive then, and Mrs. Richard Humphrey comes over from Narragansett Pier, where she is staying with friends.

Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers, Jr., a leader in Magnolia's gala day to benefit the Travelers' Aid Society. The whole North Shore is enrolled to aid this large philanthropy on Tuesday.

THAT RICHARD G. PAYNE of New York is to be best man is one of the few facts regarding wedding plans coming from Beachmound today. The names of ushers who will serve for Mr. Church have not been officially announced. Rumor says that Harold Vanderbilt and Herman Oelrichs will be in the processional. Rumor also says that William Kissam Vanderbilt, father of the bride-elect, gives her in marriage. At any rate Mr. Vanderbilt is in Newport and naturally would have the giving away privilege. Rumor, that talkative dame, also places Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt in the processional as maid of honor, sole attendant for the bride, and names Bishop Herbert Shipman and the Rev. Stanley Hughes as officiating clergymen.

NEWPORT, on the whole, is not deeply stirred over the coming Church bridal. Mrs. Vanderbilt has kept the details as simple as possible. Of course the smart set of Gotham and Newport is bidden, to the number of some four hundred. The surrounding festivites, however, are gayest of the gay. Aside from the large ball at the Harry Payne Whitney villa in Bellevue avenue just after the wedding, there is this evening's dinner and dance at Rough Point given by the James B. Dukes. The new Mr. and Mrs. Church will in all probability go to Saratoga Springs with Mrs. Vanderbilt, during the early days of their honeymoon, and return to Newport for the mid-August festivities.

MRS. GEORGE PEABODY GARDNER, Jr., of Boston, registered yesterday at the Newport Casino. She is in town as the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Dudley Davis, at Wyndham Ridge. Mrs. Davis was Alice Grosvenor.

THE FRANCIS B. CROWNINSHIELDS of Boston and Marblehead have as their house guests at "Seaside Farm" the Carl A. De Gersdorffs of New York and Stockbridge, the latter parents of Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., who also spend their Summers usually at Marblehead. Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, and son, Cunningham, one of the junior yachtsmen of growing fame, who had apartments at the Eastern Yacht Club earlier in the season, are now at the Hotel Samoset on Marblehead Neck.

MRS. EDWIN U. CURTIS is traveling in the Northwest with the Canadian Rockies and Alaska on her itinerary. Mrs. Wallace E. Blackford of New York is with her. Meanwhile the two charming Curtis daughters, Miss Penelope and Miss Margaret, are still at the Curtis Summer place in Nahant. It is to Nahant that the Princess Michael Cantacuzene (Clarissa Curtis, daughter of the Thomas P. Curtises) plans to return shortly after the first of August.

THE BLONDE and good-looking Princess was a guest at Nahant earlier in the season, but rejoined her husband at their Chicago apartment after but a brief stay. During her coming visit she will be much in demand as an attraction, par excellence, at charity fetes. Her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant of Washington, and her sister, the Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, are traveling abroad.

PLANS GO on apace for Tuesday's gala day at Magnolia shops, when those smart emporiums donate a certain percentage of receipts to the fund for the Travelers' Aid Society. Mesdames Russell S. Codman, William H. Coolidge, J. Pierpont Stackpole and B. Woodbury Preston, with an eye to the accumulation of pence, shillings and pounds for their charity, have arranged "something for everyone," so they say, from children to grown-ups.

PONY RIDES, grabs and the usual entertainment is on the cards for the little ones. For their elders there is the more sophisticated theatrical tidbit offered, with leading lights of the "No, No, Nanette" company generously journeying way down to Magnolia, to present a skit. Hostesses at the shops will be Mrs. Francis P. Sears, Mrs. Bernard Rogers, Miss Katherine Lane and other maids and matrons of the North Shore set.

THE ROGER W. CUTLERS of "The Ledges," Charles River Village, have migrated to their country place at Holderness, New Hampshire, on Asquam Lake, for the remainder of the Summer. Mrs. Cutler was Leslie Bradley, and has been given signal honors and responsibilities in civic affairs out in Needham.

WOMAN WEARS BEST GEMS IN DEATH LEAP

Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer Was Victim of "Nerves"; Failed to Find Relief

New York, July 24 (I.N.S.).—Illness which she had suffered for years without obtaining relief was advanced today by friends for the dramatic suicide of Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, member of an old distinguished Knickerbocker family and prominent in Boston and Newport.

While waiting in the anteroom to consult a specialist she opened the window and plunged four stories to her death. Before her leap she had pinned thousands of dollars worth of jewelry over her heart. She was fifty-nine years old.

She was visiting Dr. P. K. Johnson, her physician, at his office. He expressed the opinion that she had yielded to a sudden impulse to leap to her death.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer, he said, has been a chronic invalid for some time. He described her ailment as a "nervous disease," and said that lately she has been extremely depressed.

CLEAR WEATHER FOR TWO DAYS, OFFICIAL FORECAST

Boston will enjoy at least two days more of the brand of weather which has prevailed since Wednesday's storms, clear skies and moderate temperatures. A high pressure area spreads over the country from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes. In Minnesota today there is a small storm area that has caused heavy rains in that State, and which may reach Boston by Sunday, but which also may slip by via the St. Lawrence Valley. Forecaster Loveland's forecast today is fair, with moderate temperatures today and Saturday; gentle westerly winds.

LA FOLLETTE FARM IS PROPOSED AS MEMORIAL

Madison, Wis., July 24 (A.P.).—Formation of a National Memorial Association, the purpose of which would be to perpetuate the memory of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette and convert the La Follette farm in Maple Bluff, near here, into a memorial park similar to that at Mount Vernon, Va., is favored here.

CATHOLICS TO BUILD NEW COLLEGE IN ROME

Rome, July 24 (A.P.).—The Rev. Joseph A. Breslin of New York, recently appointed vice rector of the North American College at Rome, is expected to arrive here August 8. The present rector, the Very Rev. Monsignor Eugene S. Burke, will leave for the United States August 15 to complete arrangements for the building of a new North American College here at an estimated cost of about $1,000,000.

MRS. WILSON TO VISIT FRIENDS IN GENEVA

Geneva, July 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is now staying in Venice, is expected to visit Geneva in September and be the guest of friends who have taken a villa there.

Returns $100 to Owner; Rewarded With $525

New York, July 24.—"I don't think I'll see as much money as this again in all my life," said Mrs. Jennie Byrnes, a scrubwoman, in the Grand Central Palace Building, who had received up to $525 for her honesty in returning to its owner her finding of $100 in bills. The contributions came in small sums from people who were impressed with her sincerity under desperate conditions.

With her husband serving a six months' term, Mrs. Byrnes, her daughter, Mary, six years old, and the month-old son, Jim, have faced starvation.

U. S. JACKIES IN PARADE TODAY AT MELBOURNE

Admiral Coontz Expresses His Pleasure Over Reception Accorded by Australia

Melbourne, July 24 (A.P.).—The rapidity with which Melbourne is chumming with the officers and men of the United States fleet, visiting here, augurs well for an enjoyable fortnight. All theatres, both legitimate and "cinema," were thrown open to the visitors.

A brilliant spectacle is expected today when 1,800 men from the fleet are to march the streets in the formal parade.

Admiral Robert E. Coontz, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet, told interviewers today that the officers and men of his command were "a fine lot." He added that the trip has done them "no end of good." The Admiral expressed himself as greatly delighted with "the generous and kindly welcome" of Australia, but added that he was not surprised.

The weather today was more pleasant, and good weather is forecast for the next few days.

WOMAN OF 70 IS ARRESTED IN GAMING RAID

Seven Taken in Custody, Cards and Chips Seized in Back Bay

A seventy-year-old woman who gave a Chelsea address was one of the four women taken when police raided an alleged gambling den at No. 407 Huntington avenue, Back Bay.

The women were all fashionably gowned and gave little evidence of excitement or nervous strain when taken to the Back Bay police station where they quickly furnished bail.

The raid was made by Sergeant Walter M. French and Patrolmen Sheehan and Mortimer of the vice squad, who had secured a search warrant for the apartment. When the policemen broke into the place they met with little opposition. In addition to the four women the raiders arrested three men said to be in charge of the place. Playing cards and poker chips were seized by the policemen. The four women are charged with being present where gaming instruments were found.

The names given by those taken in the raid and their addresses follow:

Thomas Garrity, 53, of No. 407 Huntington avenue; Sam Wolf, 28, of No. 1395 Commonwealth avenue; Benjamin Markeshan, 31, of No. 2254 Davison avenue, New York; Mrs. Estelle Gould, 35, of 71st street and Broadway, N. Y.; Mrs. Fanny Loftus, 70, of No. 84 Bellingham street, Chelsea; Mrs. Julia Garrity, 42, of No. 407 Huntington avenue; Mrs. Francis Hennessey, 46, of No 107 Seventy-Sixth street, N. Y.

U. S. Navy Golfers Get '19th Hole' in Sydney

London, July 24.—The Daily Mail's Sydney correspondent says that many people in Australia are uncertain regarding the propriety of offering alcoholic liquor to the members of the United States fleet now visiting Sydney and Melbourne. An interesting exchange of messages prior to the arrival of the American warships might be considered fairly significant.

The New South Wales Golf Club sent the following radio: "The fleet golfers are welcomed to our bunkers and 19ths." The reply was: "Hearty thanks. Will do our best with both hazards."

The 19th hole, it might be added, is the place where wet goods are dispensed.

SEIZURE OF TUG KINGFISHER A MYSTERY

Considerable mystery attaches to the seizure by Coast Guard rum chasers of the ocean-going tug Kingfisher, which is tied up at the Appraiser's stores building on Atlantic avenue, after having been brought here from the waters south of Cape Cod.

The tug, which was in East Boston for repairs on July 11, was said to have been without cargo of any kind when she was captured by the rum chasers.

Deputy Customs Collector Thomas J. Finnegan, recently appointed to the post, refuses to tell anything about the seizure of the tug, which is one of the finest craft taken in the present rum blockade.

The captain and members of the crew of the tug were questioned by Finnegan until almost daylight, today, after which they returned to the tug, refusing to talk.

GOODWIN RAPS OUT-OF-STATE AUTOISTS

Blames Them for Headlight Faults; Registrar Attending Providence Conference

Providence, R. I., July 24.—Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin of Boston is one of the leading figures in the annual conference of motor vehicle commissioners and registrars of the Eastern States, which opened here today.

Registrar Goodwin presented to the conference the question of having improperly equipped cars from one State passing through another State where the visitor violates many of the motor vehicle laws.

Mr. Goodwin explained that New Hampshire and Rhode Island cars, for example, in a majority of cases fail to comply with Massachusetts laws while visiting in the Bay State.

OUTSIDERS BLAMED.

Registrar Goodwin said that Lowell and Lawrence are the worst offenders, particularly with faulty headlights. But the registrar stated, New Hampshire cars checked in these two cities have a great deal to do with the low standing of Lowell and Lawrence.

In Fall River and New Bedford, similar situations exist, with fifty per cent. of the offenders in the examinations made in those cities being Rhode Island cars.

LIGHTS TIPPED UP.

Boston and Worcester rank high, and Springfield also, according to a partial report made by the inspectors to Registrar Goodwin. Without prejudice, however, the inspectors report that a good deal of the trouble has been given by cars from other States.

The inspectors have found that one of the chief faults with the headlights seems to be that owners of cars have not allowed for loading. It has been found in many instances that the lights have been focussed properly, with the car empty, but when there are passengers on the rear seat, the lights are tipped so that the rays shoot up in the air.

BRITISH LAW BARS AMERICAN CIGARETTES

London, July 24.—Certain popular brands of American cigarettes are barred from the British Isles by the enforcement of an act of Parliament passed in 1842 forbidding the use of sugar in any form in the manufacture of tobacco.

Shortly after the war a government analyst discovered the secret of the flavor in one brand, thousands of which were publicly burned at the Liverpool docks when the old parliamentary act was unearthed.

"JELLY FISH ITCH" AT NANTASKET TRIFLING

Danger of jellyfish poisoning, so-called, at Nantasket and other beaches, has been much exaggerated, according to officials at the State Bath-house, Nantasket. They claim the "poisoning" is nothing more than a skin irritation and superficial, that without attention it will disappear within an hour or an hour and a half.

BOBBING ON WANE, SAYS HAIRPIN MAKER

Fitchburg, July 24.—Bobbed hair is on the wane, according to Lester T. Sawyer, hairpin manufacturer. Orders for this article of feminine demand, which is as elusive as a collar button, are coming in in large numbers. Buyers from the West inform Mr. Sawyer that the women folks are returning to the old style of hair dress.

COLD STORAGE FOOD IS SHOWING DECREASE

According to a report issued by Herman C. Lythgoe, director of the Food and Drug division of the Department of Public Health, on July 1, there were in cold storage 45,601,434 pounds of food, as compared with 47,099,550 July 1, 1924, and 54,353,635 July 1, 1923.

FINDS EARLY WORKERS LOSE 8 YEARS OF LIFE

Washington, July 24.—The assertion that industrial workers who begin work before the age of twenty have their lives cut short an average of eight years, was made before the Maccabees' convention here, by J. C. Hanchett, supreme medical director of the order.

RAISE OF PAY FATAL TO AGED TAX COLLECTOR

Hudson, July 24.—Tax Collector Fred F. Trull, seventy years old, died of heart failure after the voters had given him a $500 pay raise the night before in special town meeting.

Mr. Trull was present at the meeting and heard the motion go through to increase his annual salary from $1,800 to $2,300 in recognition of his excellent work.

1,000,000 WILL JOIN BRITISH MINE STRIKE

General Walkout of the Coal Workers Set for July 31 as Peace Parleys Fail

London, July 24 (A.P.).—Between a million and a million and a quarter miners in Great Britain will go on strike July 31 if the notices sent out by the existing agreement between the miners and mine owners is obeyed in all fields.

These are the estimates both of the miners' federation and the mine operators.

The decision of the miners' executive to call a strike on July 31 was taken last night. It followed upon more than a week of unsuccessful attempts to bring the miners and mine owners together for the negotiation of a new agreement to take the place of the one which expires on the day on which the strike has been called.

But the miners have insisted that the owners withdraw their proposals, which provide for a reduction in wages and the adding of an hour to the working day, otherwise they would not meet them to discuss a new agreement.

GANG CHARGES POLICE MAKING ARREST

Hanover Street Station Officers Cling to Prisoner Who Is Held for Assault

Antonio Cogneto, twenty-one years old, of Chelsea, who police say is a leader of a North End gang, was to be charged today with assaulting two police officers, as a result of the near riot which occurred at the corner and of North and Fleet streets when two plainclothes men arrested Cogneto for insulting a woman.

Officers Hugh Madden and Mark Sullivan were standing near the corner when two girls passed by in an automobile. It is claimed Cogneto and his gang blocked the street and then Cogneto called one of the girls a vile name.

The officers arrested Cogneto and immediately they were charged by the gangsters. The policemen were knocked down and kicked but they held onto their revolvers and a few moments later the police patrol arrived with reinforcements.

Former Governor Eugene N. Foss, declares, in answer to interrogations filed in Suffolk County Court, that in arranging for the sale of property at Charlesgate East and Beacon street, he had no knowledge that the former owners of the land intended the site was to be used for hospital purposes.

The property was left in the estate of Lucy I. Des Brisay.

The action on file is a $50,000 suit by the "Des Brisay Hospital, Inc.," to recover because of damage said to have been suffered when it became known that the property under negotiation could not be used for hospital purposes on account of restrictions.

BILL JUGGLERS FOOL MALDEN MERCHANTS

Malden police are looking for two men in a sport model auto who are alleged to have short-changed three merchants. Their game was to tender a $20 bill in payment for a small purchase, then take it back and tender a $10 and again take back the $10 and give the correct change. In each transaction the juggling netted the youths about $5. Antonio Analetto, garage owner; Edgar Caggiona and Edgar Peterson, storekeepers, were the losers.

QUEZON RETORTS TO GEN. WOOD'S CHARGES

Manila, July 24 (A.P.).—Denial that religious differences between Christian and Mohammedan natives of the Philippines were the underlying causes of trouble with the Moros has been made in the Philippine Senate by its president, Manuel Quezon.

Replying to the address to the Legislature of Governor-General Leonard Wood, Mr. Quezon asserted "the Governor-General dared hurl at our faces the statement that present troubles in Mindanao are due to the natural hatred borne by Mohammedan Filipinos against their Christian brethren. Undoubtedly someone is trying to induce the United States not to fulfill the promise of independence made solemnly to the Filipino people, and wants to see Mindanao separated from the remainder of the Philippines.

BOSTON BALL PLAYERS SAVE 8 IN FIRE

South Portland, Me., July 24.—Led by Frank E. Silva, Jr., twenty-four years old, of No. 37 Faywood avenue, East Boston, members of the East Boston professional baseball team, who are touring Maine, early today rescued six small children huddled in a large bed asleep in their home on Central avenue here.

The youngsters rescued were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Turkevitz, in the Ligonia section of South Portland.

Silva, who was driving his automobile, which contained several members of the ball team, was on his way from Old Orchard to Portland, where the team was scheduled to play today.

Silva saw the house aflame and broke down the door and rushed into the house. The cottage was blazing when Silva and his players entered. Their shouting did not seem to take any effect, and on the second floor they found the six children. Harkins, Clifford, Casey, Doherty and Hayes, all members of the team, carried the youngsters down through the smoke-filled hallway to the street. The ball players then succeeded in getting Mr. and Mrs. Turkevitz to the street, but with extreme difficulty, as they did not realize that their six children had been saved.

Silva is widely known in East Boston, having lived in the Orient Heights section. He is a former Dean Academy and Westbrook Academy student.

Hoquiam, Wash., July 24. — Laws dealing with immigration will be codified by the House Immigration Committee at meetings beginning November 1, to be submitted to the Winter session of Congress. Representative Johnson declared the first year of operation of the immigration law has shown it to be an unqualified success and he will combat every attempt to weaken it. He decried reports that there has been any extensive "bootlegging" of immigrants or that there has been any great influx of smuggled aliens across the Canadian or Mexican borders.

DAWES, IN SOMBRERO, TASTES WESTERN LIFE

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 24 (A.P.).—Vice-President Dawes rode from the railroad station to his hotel here in a ramshackle coach which saw service between Cheyenne and Deadwood, S. D., forty years ago. He was escorted by Indians and cowboys.

Mr. Dawes, who is to attend a Wild West celebration here, was wearing a large sombrero, a present from American Legion men. When he reached the hotel he passed between a double line of Indians, each of whom insisted on shaking hands.

DEATH REVEALS FLIER'S SECRET LOVE

U.S. Lifts Customs Bar to Help Parents Cheat Reaper

A Thrilling Novel of Love and Adventure, Mystery and Intrigue That Every-One Will Want to Read

"Help me," she cried. "Sascha, Sascha."

Posed by Louise Groody, star of "No, No, Nanette" and Alfred Milans of the same company.

SALLY MEREDITH, nervy niece of

M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the foruula is destroyed by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enters the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case.

ETTA SHAW, once friend of Sally, lures the girl to London. She is made a prisoner by Lazare, the Goggled Terror. Lazare attempts to terrorize Sally, but fails. Sally's jailers learn from spies that Bill is coming to search Etta's house, the prison. Etta pretends to let Sally escape so that they may recapture her when Bill goes. Bill finds Lasalle.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

CHAPTER XXIII

MISS SHAW was still sitting exactly as Nadine had left her, the large, slow tears rolling over her pink cheeks and making a damp path on the fine embroidered shawl she wore

Etta came to her, kissed her, patted the trembling hands, and spoke soothingly, whilst Nadine and Lazare stood just inside the door and watched. Nadine's foot tapping impatiently, Lazare quiet and controlled

"Aunt Emma," said Etta, "dear Aunt Emma, do tell me, did you get out of bed just now? Did you, dear?"

"No, no, oh, dear me, no," sobbed Miss Shaw. "I don't know, my dear, I don't know."

"Now, Aunt Emma, don't be afraid. There's no harm if you did get out. Just tell me, did you open your cap drawer and take my—my card case out of it? It was red—a flat case, about so big. Did you take it out of your cap drawer?"

Miss Shaw stopped sobbing and sniffed.

"She tumbled my caps," she said, her mild blue eyes looking reproachfully at Nadine. "She tumbled them; and you know how particular I am about my caps." She sniffed again.

Sally, looking through the crack of the door, had seen Etta go into Miss Shaw's room, had seen Lazare and Nadine follow her. They left the door open behind them. Already she knew what she must do, what she must try to do; knew also how small a chance she had of succeeding. She must get down the stairs now, at once, whilst they were in Miss Shaw's room

She had quite a clear picture of what would happen in a minute. Etta would make Miss Shaw talk, they would find out that she, Sally, was missing, and the house would be searched from garret to cellar. If she could get down stairs and out of the house before they missed her, there was a slender chance, otherwise none at all. But to leave this dark room and go out into the light, to pass so close to that open door and risk the stairs. All these thoughts passed through her mind with unbelievable rapidity. They were there as Etta disappeared into her aunt's room, and when Lazare and Nadine followed her and passed from sight Sally had already taken her decision, was already pushing the door open. To come out into the unshaded light of the landing was like taking a plunge into ice-cold water.

Sally did not give herself time to think. She ran quickly, lightly, out of the dark passage on to the stairhead and down the stairs. There were eight steps and a turn, six more and the half landing with the drawing room opening on to it.

Sally reached the turn on noiseless, flying feet, caught the stair rail to steady herself as she swung round, and came down on the second step of the short half-flight. Here she checked for a second, listening. Above her the voices went on. She looked down through the

RUM RING COLLECTOR SOUGHT

Federal Agents Seek Man Said to Be Go-Between in Chelsea Bootleg Activities

With five more alleged members of the Chelsea rum ring under arrest, Federal Authorities today are combined in the hunt for Ernest ("Dutch") Henry, said by the government agents to be the collector for the rum ring and the messenger between the ring and certain Chelsea city officials.

Among the five men taken in the latest batch of arrests is Daniel (Red) Murphy, alleged to be an important figure in the ring, and regarded as one of the so-called "inner circle."

The search for Henry is being conducted throughout Greater Boston, but it is believed that the attorneys employed by the men already under arrest, know where Henry can be found and that he will give himself up when bail has been secured

NEW YORKERS VANISH.

United States Commissioner [illegible]ney is demanding $5,000 bail from each of the men regarded as principals in the ring, while the lesser fry are being given their freedom on bonds of $2,500 each.

It became known today that four New York bootleggers who have been in hand in glove with the Chelsea ring have taken a swift and secret departure from the city. These men who were active in running liquor into Chelsea, were the unwitting tools of the Federal agents and from them most of the information that lead to the Grand Jury indictments in Federal Court was secured

These men "fell" for the Federal investigators who were seeking evidence for several months. Now fearful that the Chelsea men might seek vengeance, the New Yorkers have fled

BOOTLEGGERS SCARED.

In addition to Murphy, the other men taken are William Schwartz of Winnisimmet street and David S[illegible] of Shawmut street, both of whom were released on $[illegible] bail; Maurice (Bert) A[illegible] W[illegible], chauffeur, and Samuel Hetzel of Franklin street, each released on $2,500 bail each.

The rumsellers of Chelsea are finally alarmed at the activities of the government. Heretofore, the drive against the rum ring was believed to be another mild offensive that would accomplish little or nothing and would soon be forgotten

The arrest of the men who have long been regarded as immune and the heavy bail demanded of them has frightened the smaller fry and a majority of the Chelsea bootleg establishments are closed today

ROMANCE IS REVEALED BY CRASH

Dead Aviation Teacher Was Married Six Months Ago to New York Girl

The tragic death of Lieutenant Mark C. Hogue, who with a passenger, George Burroughs, was killed when his airplane nose-dived near the Boston Airport, has revealed a romance the intrepid aviator had kept secret from the world.

Hogue's friends and acquaintances believed he was a single man. Early today his bride of six months, Mrs. M[illegible] Brisoe Hogue of New York arrived by automobile to take charge of the body.

The bride was near collapse when she arrived at the club, having [illegible] by automobile because she could arrive here several hours ahead of the first train that was available

LOCATED BUSINESS HERE.

The young widow told of her romance with the unfortunate aviator. They were married in New York six months ago. The young lieutenant was anxious to become established in a well paying business. He had served in the army, had done stunt flying at fairs and carnivals and [illegible] as airplane instructor [illegible] he had never saved any great amount of money.

He had enough to start an airplane school, however, and he decided to go into business in Boston. The young couple decided they would say nothing of their marriage until the business venture was [illegible] way and its success was assured.

SCHOOL WAS SUCCESS.

The A[illegible] Air School was organized here and from the first it was apparent the venture would be a success. In high spirits the lieutenant wrote his bride that he was ordering eighteen new airplanes and that within a few months at the most they would have an assured income and would make their marriage known to the world

The marriage was known to a few intimate friends of the couple, but it was not until the lieutenant crashed to his death on the tracks of the Narrow Gauge Railroad that the secret romance became known to the world

NABBED 3 TIMES FOR LOOKING LIKE SLAYER

New York, July 24—John Collinore of Fairfield, Conn., rues the fates which gave him a striking resemblance to Philip K. Krapp, army deserter and alleged murderer.

For the third time in as many days, hawkeyed policemen pounced on Collinore, believing him to be the fugitive. Brooklyn police are the latest to admit their mistake. Collinore was similarly held in Bridgeport, Conn., and Port Chester, N. Y., during a trip from Fairfield to New York

All that remains of the airplane in which Lieutenant Mark Hogue and George Burroughs, Boston broker and yachtsman, plunged to their death on the railroad adjoining East Boston Airport. Burroughs expressed a foreboding of disaster in his office before the trip.

BIG BUILDING STRIKE AGAIN LOOMS HERE

Boston's building industries are again face to face with a strike of the [illegible] artisans and laborers employed on scores of building operations in and about Greater Boston.

Refusal of the Building Trade Employers' Association to act promptly on the request of the unions for a conference over the report of Fed[illegible] [illegible] strike of the [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible]

But back of this is the refusal of the employers to abide by the findings of the Federal [illegible] in their report [illegible]

[illegible] workers in the building trades. The meeting will be held at No. 880 Huntington avenue, and there is little question that the calling of the strike will be authorized

STATE TO TRY AGAIN

[illegible] State Board of Conciliation will make an eleventh hour effort [illegible]. The State body offered its services in the apparent deadlock several weeks ago, but withdrew its offer when the Federal government conciliators took charge. Now that the government at Washington has apparently failed to prevent the strike the State officials will try their hand

The entire matter hinges about the refusal of the employers to grant the building laborers an increase in pay for the present year, or to arbitrate their demand for more money

The employes have already signed [illegible] year

Price of Cotton Increases $7 a Bale

New York, July 24—Cotton soared $7 a bale on the New York cotton market, due principally to the unexpected bullish showing of the Government crop report. October contracts went to around 25 cents a pound. The highest level in several months, and representing a gain of $7 a bale.

The boys drowned were John O'Brien, eleven years old, and Wilfred LaFleur, nine

Atlantic City, July 24 (A. Debate was intense and [illegible] president, Michael D[illegible] of Philadelphia, a former member of Congress, put an end to the [illegible] was adopted

The delegates were aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm when a resolution was introduced that called upon the Ancient Order of Hibernians to pledge themselves to join any movement that may have for its purpose the incorporation in the text books on history used in the school's of the country of the names and services of Haym Salomon, financial mainstay of the Revolution; John Barry, father of the American navy, and Thomas Fitzsimmons, a signer of the Constitution of the United States."

Denver, Col., July 24—A [illegible] hand [illegible] father [illegible]

When taken to the hospital he steadfastly refused to tell anything about his family. In the army he had told his superiors his parents were dead. As death slowly approached, however, there came a great longing to see some of the loved ones from home. The boy finally gave the hospital authorities the name of a boy friend in [illegible], Mass. The doctors wrote this friend, who in turn communicated with a brother of the dying boy.

The brother made a fast motorcycle run from Reading to Whitman, and told his father. Within an hour the father was aboard a fast train going westward.

WANTED TO BUY GREENBACKS AT COST

Washington, July 24—There is a man in Shelby County, Kentucky, who wants money. And he wrote to Director Alvin Hall of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, asking for it

This gentleman learned that it cost the government 01[illegible] cents to print a national bank note and 009 for a U. S. note. This gentleman wanted a hundred $100 bank notes and a hundred $100 U. S. notes. In his letter he enclosed a check for $2.45, asking that the money be forwarded immediately, as he needed it badly.

RUNYON SAYS

Mr. Maines at Work. Making New B. B. Fans. A Horrible Suspicion.

By Damon Runyon

MR. GEORGE H. MAINES, an up-and-going young man, who was formerly president of the Michigan-Ontario League, has organized in the city of Detroit the largest baseball league ever known, with 7,745 players and 545 complete baseball teams.

Damon Runyon.

It is called the School Extension League and the players are from ten to sixteen years of age. Mr. Maines writes that they play their games on the sand lots of Detroit, laying himself liable to charges of civic treason or lese majeste, for referring to the rich, alluvial soil of Detroit as sand.

The teams play regularly scheduled games every day. Boy umpires are employed, official scores kept, all players registered and everything is carried on strictly according to big time theories. It seems that Mr. Maines has interested several Detroit business men in financing the league.

Baseball equipment is provided all organized teams, and a team that wins four games gets uniforms. Whether this is four consecutive games or four games all scattered out, is not stated by Mr. Maines. It would have been a tough rule for the Yankees this year if they hadn't gotten their uniforms until they won four consecutive games. They would be going around in ad lib apparel like a troupe of hoboes

MR. MAINES says that the Mayor of Detroit, the superintendent of schools, the school board, and the Recreation Department have endorsed the league, and that Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, and Ban B. Johnson, president of the American League, are highly in favor of it.

The mention of Mr. Johnson's name gives rise to sinister suspicion Mr. Johnson represents the magnates of organized baseball, big hearted men who will give you a rowboat for a battleship any day. Can it be that this is another of those evolution cases with Mr Maines figuring as the John Thomas Scopes of baseball?

Can it be that Mr. Scopes Maines, with the connivance of Mr. Johnson, is trying to evolute from Detroit baseball adolescence the fans of the future?

It can and probably is

TO Mr. Johnson, a baseball fan represents approximately one dollar. Two fans are two dollars. Naturally Mr. Johnson will put in with any idea calculated to make two fans grow where but one fan grew before.

It is rather surprising, however, to find Ty Cobb, the justly famous jewel of Georgia, favoring the plan. To Mr Cobb a baseball fan is a guy who hollers rotten when you strike out. But since becoming a manager, Mr. Cobb has perhaps learned that it is better to propagate the fans than it is to exterminate them, which was his idea a few years back.

ANYWAY, this is the first practical movement to interest youngsters in baseball playing on any considerable scale. The distribution of free baseball equipment is the thing that has put Mr. Maines' idea over big.

Of the 7,745 boys in the Detroit league 6,500 reported they had never played a real game before on account of lack of playing equipment.

Each team carries fifteen players, and among the teams are Judge Landis' Boys, the Ban Johnsons Juniors, the Ty Cobbs, Meusel's Cubs, the Young Heydlers Babe Ruth's Cubs, and McGraw's Giants.

CROWD PACKS WIGWAM FOR BENEFIT TILT

By NICK FLATLEY

Braves Field should be filled to the girders this afternoon.

A snappy ball game between two battling clubs, the Braves and the Giants, was being played for real charity. The receipts went to the Salvation Army for their kids camp at Sharon.

Judge Fuchs of the Braves turned over the entire receipts of his club to the Army. The New York Giants donated all theirs except bare expenses. The two ball clubs showed a manner of giving that should make every fan feel like kicking in.

The game itself would be worth the attention of any rooter. The double bill between the two teams yesterday was a bird, from start to finish. The Braves think they're just as good as the champions, and the champions are beginning to believe it, also. Thus far the teams have divided sixteen games.

But there was a whole lot more than the pastime. The No, No, Nanette company was to appear and entertain the crowd. The whole chorus, as well as all the stars gladly gave an afternoon. There was a big band, and a collection of state, national and city officials that threatened to wear out the cameras of the picture shooters.

The Salvation Army gives 4,000 youngsters a vacation each Summer at Lake Massapoag, Sharon. The encampment is expensive. That's why all the real folks were so glad to help. Every true fan, who can duck the boss, or drag him along, ought to be out there this P. M.

THE visiting Giants present a strong battle front, but their power doesn't feaze the Braves a bit The Warriors stepped out in the first game yesterday and swept the haughty champs off their respective dogs. The New Yorkers were fighting hard to beat off the rush of the Pirates, but their efforts didn't mean a thing.

They were stopped by Cooney's fine pitching, while the Tribe was pasting Master Bentley, who southpaws. The invaders won the second game on sheer luck Pitcher Greenfield was wild, and was hit, but he wriggled through because he had one of those days. He figured in two incidents that exploded the ball.

THE Giants still have some cripples. Travis Jackson, regular shortstop has a sprained knee and there's no telling when he will return to the fold. He isn't missed much, as Frisch is a great shortstop, and George Kelly covers second as well as anybody ever did. But his absence keeps Terry in there against southpaws, and the big boy doesn't hammer them hard or frequently.

Heinie Groh's famous knee is also in bandages. The loose cartilages refuse to anchor themselves, and every time the capable Heinie puts his weight on the runner something snaps. His loss isn't exactly fatal, for the youthful Lindstrom is a whale of a fielder and a mean hitter. Gus, who stepped into the sun during the last world series evidently intends to stay there. He looks almost as good as "Pie" Traynor, and you know what that means.

Outside of that, the McGraws are in shape, and prepared to wage a merry war with the Pirates for the rest of the journey. If the two contending clubs played the Braves often enough, one of the other teams could step in and win without much trouble.

DAVE BANCROFT made some of the finest stops a Wigwam crowd has ever watched. Frisch was great, but Banny had him beaten.

* * *

GAUTREAU stole second cleanly in the opener, winding up with one of those nifty slides that brought him back on his feet on the bag. The kid is a great actor.

AMATEUR GOLF STARS IN THIRD ROUND

By BILL GRIMES.

Although the pairings yesterday, especially in the afternoon, brought out the keenest kind of competition, there promises to be as much excitement this morning in the third round for the State amateur golf championships, as there was in the opening rounds.

Al Wade, the long hitter from Meadowbrook, and Joe Batchelder of Dartmouth College and Wenham, were the first pair sent away. Although both Wade and Batchelder are youngsters, they are playing a line of golf, which shapes up well with that of anyone in the tournament

Everybody is asking who David Whiteside of Reservation is. He is well-known down on the Cape, where he has established himself as a golfer. He was formerly a semi-pro ball player, having played with Falmouth and Hyannis for years. He played an exhibition match with Francis Ouimet at Reservation some time ago and, upon returning to Boston, Ouimet recommended that the M. G. A. cut Whiteside's handicap so as to allow him to play in this tournament. Whiteside knocked over Eddie Stimpson of Brae Burn in the first round to the tune of 6 and 5. Stimpson is a real top-notch golfer, and his overwhelming defeat at the hands of Whiteside speaks volumes for the Cape Codder's game. In the afternoon, Whiteside met a real fighter in Loring Coes of Worcester, who fought him right to the home green

W. P Hersey, who is paired with Whiteside this morning, is shooting the same fine golf he did during the qualifying round. Milton W. Vedder of Belmont gave Hersey a fine battle yesterday morning, but was finally defeated 1 down. Hersey eliminated one of the toughest match players in the tournament in the second round in Fred C. Newton of The Country Club

Francis Ouimet meets a fine player in Herbert Jaques. Few golfers in the game possesses the steadiness of Jaques, and Francis will have to be right to turn back the local man

Ray Gorton is the only veteran left and he is meeting the youngest competitor in Eddie Murphy of Charles River. Murphy is but 16 years old, but he has all the earmarks of a real champion even now.

Moe and Joe, They Get the Dough---Sometimes

Moe tried to put over a sleeper yesterday with Mosque but the killie wasn't there, although he worked fast enough to beat the gang he was with. This afternoon, Moe is pegging at a speed bird which looks like the winner. Fat Johnnie Meehan is trailing with the plunger. Cash in kick $1,998.74

One chap came straggling in, half an hour after the rest. He was not sore, nor disgusted as the loser in almost any other contest would be. He was grinning like the rest of them. One knew that he was promising himself better luck next time.

WE were interested in that smiling son of defeat. We asked him about it. He admitted that he had sailed in 20 races this Summer and had yet to cross the line a winner.

"But I get the kick out of it just the same," he beamed. "Out there on the water you never can tell what will happen. In a single hour one day last week we sailed under doubled reefs, were becalmed, and then had the main sheet torn off by a squall that came from nowhere. It's a great gamble every time you go out there."

THERE were some couple of hundred little boats scooting around that bay and there never was a happier looking crowd of men than the chaps who were sailing them. We of the hinterland don't get the habit but hundreds of wise individuals along our coast [illegible]. Take a trip along the shore, north or south, and everywhere you see the little boats bending before the breezes. Look these mariners over, and you'll catch the fever.

BOSTON has fallen hard for outdoor boxing, so hard that promoters are beginning to worry over the indoor season when it comes along will be a flop. They fear, and with reason, that the fans, as they call them, will not be so anxious to steam in the smoke filled halls after getting used to the open breezes of the ball parks and lake tracks. Promoters are that way. No matter how hard the dollars are rolling in they can find something to fret about.

Three [illegible] this Summer at Braves Field have attracted greater houses than ever watched an indoor show. The Sharkey-Salmon [illegible] next week bids fair to eclipse the preceding three. Boston fans will ever storm the turnstiles when a good bill looms ahead.

AMERICAN JOCKEY TO LEAVE FOR BERLIN

Paris, July 24 (A.P.)—The American jockey, Frank O'Neill, who is considered the premier jockey of France, has accepted terms to ride in Germany. He will leave for Berlin at an early date, forsaking the French turf, where he has been riding for nine consecutive years.

O'Neill came to Europe in 1907 to ride for the late W. K. Vanderbilt, then became A. K. Macomber's premier jockey. In Germany O'Neill will join Everett Haynes, another American, who has been riding the famous French horse Epinard, but who is at present leading the jockeys on the German turf in the number of winning mounts.

EVADING WILLS FOR 5 YEARS

Chance That Setup May K. O. Dempsey In His First Start

TAD, Boston Evening American Sport Ace, famous cartoonist and leading authority on boxing, in this article "speaks a mouthful" concerning Jack Dempsey's tactics in avoiding a fight with Harry Wills, the colored heavyweight, for the world's championship.

He picks to pieces Dempsey's many excuses for ducking Wills ever since the champion's promise—immediately after whipping Jess Willard—to fight all worthy contenders.

By TAD

Jack Dempsey is not playing fair. The rank and file of the boxing public is beginning to tire of the tactics used by him in his efforts to avoid a match with Harry Wills.

The writer spoke to a number of people in the past few days about the thing and the majority of fans appear to be a bit sick of the childlike excuses of the world's champion. For the past five years Wills has been ready and willing to fight, but has been side-tracked time after time, until now the affair is more of a joke than a proposition.

Wills was ready to fight Willard in 1919, but the latter accepted Dempsey instead of the colored giant. When Dempsey won the title that year he declared that he would be a "fighting champion" and accept all defis. In 1920 Dempsey took on Bill Brennan, a second-rater, and poor Billy Miske and passed up Wills. In 1921 Dempsey took on little Carpentier and passed up Wills.

In 1923 Dempsey took on Tom Gibbons, saying that he needed that bout to tune up for a Wills bout. That was in July. That same year in September, Luis Firpo—"Dead Pan Louie"—was bulled into a match with the champion. Wills was pushed to the side again.

Public sentiment was with Wills, and when asked about it Dempsey stated that he would fight Wills within two weeks after the Firpo bout. The public stopped yelling for the Wills bout then and Dempsey knocked out the novice Firpo, in two rounds. Wills waited patiently, and in the meantime beat every man the public asked him to face, whether the man was black or white.

Now Dempsey is ready to fight again, but he's not ready to fight Wills. He says that he needs a tune-up bout before he tackles Wills. Was there ever another heavyweight champion who needed to be tuned up as Dempsey does? If there was, name him.

WILL NOT DISCUSS PLAYER-WRITER RULE

New York, July 24 (A.P.).—The advisory committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association will hold its regular weekly meeting here next Tuesday, but discussion of the player-writer rule as interpreted by the national champion, William T. Tilden, II, is not anticipated.

The question of possible violation of the rule by Tilden in granting press interview should properly come before the executive committee, Edward B. Moss, secretary of the U. S. L. T. A., pointed out. Neither a meeting of this committee nor of the Association proper to discuss the case has been called, tennis officials said.

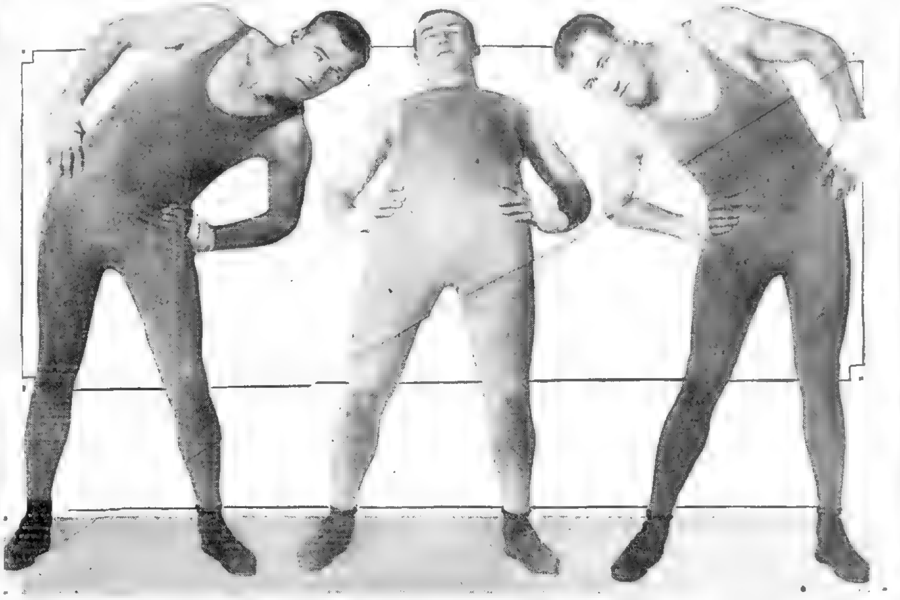
Jack Sharkey Shows Just How He Exercises



By JACK SHARKEY.
N. E. Heavyweight Champion.

I got this question in my mail today:

"What do you think of golf and tennis as healthy sports?

I have played both golf and tennis and so feel as though I can answer this query.

The chief benefit of golf is that it keeps one out in the open air and compels one to do a great deal of walking. The fact one is chasing the little white ball around the links makes him forget all about distances. Take the golf clubs and golf balls away from the average golfer and he wouldn't trudge around an 18 hole course for $25.

For a man past 40 I think golf is THE exercise. It does not overtax the heart like some of the more strenuous sports.

Golf, of course, is also a fine sport for the young. They even say that the number of sandlot ball players has fallen off on account of the drive to the links by the youth of America.

As for tennis this is a real, strenuous sport. With more and better courts each year we shall have an increase in the number of tennis players. If you think tennis is a lady like game try it. I'll wager that any 15-year-old girl who can play the game will not only make you look like a rank novice, but will also have you gasping for breath inside of ten minutes.

Now for another exercise. Stand erect with your hands on your hips. First bend the body forward, then to left, then back and then to right, and then come back to your original position. Keep your feet well apart and do exercise as you count one, two, three, four. (See photographs above.)

This exercise is particular beneficial to the stomach, spine and kidneys.

The ninth of Jack Sharkey's series on "How to Keep Fit" will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

250 Boys, 50 Girls to See Games Free

NO baseball contest picture is printed today, boys and girls of 16 years of age and under, but it's Ban Johnson's fault—or maybe the blame should go to John Heydler of the National League. There will be no ball game in Boston next Monday, so it being an off day in baseball, the Boston Evening American's contest had to take a one day intermission in order to keep things from getting snarled up.

TOMORROW A PHOTOGRAPH WILL BE PRINTED

Names of the winners on this photograph will appear in the late editions of Monday's paper. Winners will call at this office Tuesday and get their ticket, providing they bring a copy of the paper containing their names.

The scene on Tuesday shifts to Fenway Park, where the Red Sox are opening a long home stay. Tickets will be given to the first 250 boys who send in coupons correctly identifying the player.

In addition, the first 50 girls will receive grandstand seats. Regular big league high-priced seats. The boys, always gallant, will have to content themselves with bleacher seats, but owing to the increasing interest girls are showing in sports, they will have special colored tickets permitting them to sit in the grandstand.

More details and the rules of the new contest will appear in Saturday's paper. Watch closely.

Stars Meet Again in Paced Race

George Chapman, Gustav Ganay, Vincent Madonna, Frank Keenan, Henri Wynsdau and Charles Verkeyn, six of the world's leading paced cyclists, will start in the one-hour contest at the Revere Cycle Track Saturday night.

It is the second of the series of races to decide which rider will have American paced champion after his name. This year the Red, White and Blue crown is being determined by a series of twenty races. The Revere, Providence, Worcester, Newark and New York tracks will each stage four of these. Points are awarded for first, second, third and fourth places, and the rider scoring the greatest number will be awarded the title.

New York, July 24 (A.P.)—Tentative arrangements for a tennis match on August 7 and 8 between the Oxford-Cambridge team and Columbia University players have been made. Jerome Lang, Richard Marshall, George Case and a fourth player yet to be chosen will represent Columbia.

Rosenberg Stops Shea in Fourth

New York, July 24—Charlie "Phil" Rosenberg retained his title of bantamweight champion of the world when he knocked out Eddie Shea of Chicago, in the fourth round of their scheduled fifteen round bout at the Velodrome.

Shea did well in the first and the second rounds, although Charlie was the aggressor.

In the third round, however, Rosenberg let loose and floored the Chicago boy with a terrific left to the jaw. Shea was hanging on the ropes after he got up and was saved by the bell.

The end came in the fourth round when Rosenberg sent a terrific right to the jaw, which sent Shea down for the final count.

The Legion boys have beaten some of the best teams in the State and are out to add another victory to their long list of wins. The Pioneers have been in a bad slump, but Manager Red Hoffman expects to bolster up his club before the game.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's Most Successful Teacher," Says Chick Evans.

The golfer who either uses or now adopts the open stance should not place his feet too far apart. Exert a tendency to stand up straighter, more natural-like. Bend only as much as you have to, not greatly because of a feeling the pronounced stoop is going to add power to your swing. When the feet are too far apart, a straining takes place in the back swing because the upper body pulls too hard against the legs as the club nears the tip. This straining is sure to cause too much tightening and the resultant rigidity, besides restricting the back swing's freedom. At the same time do not have the feet too close together or the sense of balance will be lost.

WIFE WON'T SAY KAISER HAS NO HOPES

Herminie Balks at "No" or "Yes" to Question About Return to Throne

By S. DUNBAR WEYER

(Copyright, 1925, by International News Service. All Foreign Rights Reserved.)

Wilhelmshöhe, Park Forest, Germany, July 24.—Does the Kaiser hope to return to Germany some day to resume the throne?" I asked his wife during an interview here.

It would have been the easiest thing in the world for her to have snapped out a positive "No" or with forced emphasis, "Why certainly not."

Her words came clear and firm: "Now what can I reply to that?"

A new thought flashed across my mind and with the swiftness of the cross examiner it was put into words.

"Do you hope for that yourself, Your Majesty?"

Again there was just a second's silence. Again she looked at me unperturbed, unruffled, with utter [illegible]ness and then said with the faintest smile:

"Really, now what can I say to that; perhaps I don't know it myself."

"One honest word deserves another," put in her interviewer. "Your Majesty is perhaps unaware that the very thought of the Kaiser's return to the throne is to the whole world, particularly to America and England—like what a red bandanna is to a bull."

"Yes, yes," rejoined Herminie, and for the first time there was a note of bitterness and weariness in her voice. "That is the fruit of war time propaganda. Lloyd George, Lord Northcliffe and others had to have their scapegoat, upon whom to centralize their agitation."

"What do you think about the Crown Prince's new book on 'The Guilt'?"

"I find it very good. He sent me a copy of it the other day."

Herminie said her relations with all the Kaiser's kin are of the most cordial. She corresponds with them regularly, especially with the Crown Princess.

STILL TIME TO GIVE TO FUND FOR WIDOW

Just three weeks ago tonight, Police Inspector Benjamin Alexander, leading Boston detective, looked his last upon the familiar streets of the Hub.

It was but a few minutes before midnight when the inspector, on duty bound, entered the Pickwick Club in Beach street, with his aim the protecting of society through the capture of a man accused of a $10,000 jewel robbery.

Three hours later, while the weary inspector, a man of business alone in the midst of pleasure, still sat waiting for his man, he was dropped to his death with forty-three others in the collapse of the building.

A widow and six children were left behind, forgotten for the first hours in the horror and excitement of the tragedy.

Now their plight is before the people, but a month from now they will be a memory: the name Benny Alexander connected vaguely in the public mind with "something or other that happened."

Boston, however, is a generous town, be the occasion sports, calamity or anything that may be mentioned. But the relief fund being raised by the Boston Evening American for the widow and six children is not large enough by far.

For a moment mark yourself as Benny Alexander, and your wife and children placed in the positions of Mrs. Alexander and her children.

Then think it over and thank Fate that you are in a position to give rather than to receive.

ALEXANDER FUND.

Fort Worth, Texas—The "fastest-growing" city in Texas is not Houston, not Dallas, not even San Antonio, but Fort Worth.

The reasons? Many. But one outstanding reason is that Fort Worth is the Metropolis for West Texas, that extraordinary new empire within an empire, a new empire drawing population by the hundred thousand and yielding wealth by the hundred million—indeed, by the billion.

The most notable feature of Texas is the development of West Texas.

Read this, from the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce:

"What would it mean if there were added to the constellation of States, a new Iowa or Illinois? They rank, respectively, second and third in crop production. In area they are almost equal, with more than 56,000 square miles within their boundaries. Iowa has eight-and-one-half billion dollars of farm values, and Illinois six and two-thirds billions.

"Yet Texas proposes to present to the Nation a State equal to both of them in productivity, and with three-fourths of their combined area.

"The figures of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the year 1923, show total crop production estimated at $8,470,976,000 and that Texas produced more than one-eighth of it. $1,064,775,000. Iowa's total was $475,920,000, and Illinois $459,509,000. Thus, Texas production equalled that of Iowa and Illinois combined, with $129,436,000 worth left over.

"The Texas production was made on 27,923,000 acres, while the Iowa-Illinois combination had 42,639,000 acres. The two fat spots of the Middle West produced an average crop of $21.94 per acre, Texas $38.01. On this basis the New Empire should more than equal their combined production."

Dr. W. D. Hunter of the U. S. Department of Agriculture discussing the potential cotton production of West Texas, recently said:

"The possible increase in acreage, including new territory as well as that within the present western limits of the cotton belt in West Texas, would approximate 42 per cent. of the present total acreage in the United States, with a probable increase in the volume of the American crop of 65 per cent.

"The natural conditions in West Texas are such that the weevil cannot maintain itself, at least in numbers sufficient to affect the crop."

It is astonishing that Fort Worth is the most cheerful city I've struck in my travels.

DIVIDEND FOR WALDORF IS CALLED SAFE

By FRANK H. MELOON.
Financial Editor

"As Waldorf earnings are a great deal in excess of dividend requirements," says President P. E. Woodward, "the stockholders have no reason to fear any change being made in the dividend rate."

* * *

President Woodward says: "The increase in volume of sales for the first half of 1924 is due to two facts. The company discontinued operation of four stores because leases expired and we were unwilling to renew at higher rents, as we operate on a very conservative basis. Furthermore, business conditions in New England have been very unsettled. The decrease in profits is in part due to the decrease in volume, but likewise to the sharp increase in cost of commodities.

* * *

"Last January eleven of the principal commodities we used showed a decrease of 13 per cent. in cost over a year previous, but have since increased monthly until in June they were 8 per cent. above June, 1924. We are very reluctant to increase our prices to offset this sharp increase in food costs, and do not expect to make any changes unless the increase continues.

* * *

"We have now under construction four new lunch rooms, all of which will be opened in a few months. One is in Lawrence, one in Akron, O. and two in Cleveland, O."

* * *

E. V. Jaeger, former Boston Stock Exchange figure, now considered by many to be Wall Street's leading stock market letter writer, associated with Harnblower & Weeks in New ed with Hornblower & Weeks in New York, New Haven & Hartford to the list of rails given yesterday to be purchased." New Haven rose over a point soon after the news came out that Mr. Jaeger was bullish on it.

* * *

President Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank of New York, who is a "native" of Chelsea and rated as one of America's keenest business observers, says: "We are enjoying prosperity in this country at the moment, with every promise for better business than this country has seen since 1920."

COTTON TRADE IMPROVES

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston: Wholesale business improved during the week.

The wool market has been active during the week and business is proceeding on a more normal basis. Prices are firm and the goods market is reflecting the better condition by showing a healthier tone.

The announcement has been made of a 10 per cent. reduction in wages by mills employing 30,000 operatives; other mills are expected to fall in line with similar cuts.

Worsted yarns are a little more active, but knitting yarns, except for novelties and jersey cloth, are now slowing down.

The cotton market continues to show a slow but steady improvement. Print goods are particularly active, and some of the large mills are running nearer capacity than for a long time. Sales of print cloths at New Bedford have more than doubled in amount in the past few months.

Yarns are moving better; prices are unchanged. Prices of hides have become more stabilized and the market continues firm. Leather stocks have been reduced and production is increasing. Out look for Fall is encouraging, and more factories are going on full time.

Pulp and paper mills are more active than they were a year ago, though the demand for newsprint has fallen off.

Automobiles are selling well at retail, and the demand for automobile supplies is well maintained. The rush to stock up on automobile tires before the price increases become effective is mostly over. Collections in the automobile trade have improved.

SMALLER COTTON CROP IS FEDERAL FORECAST

Washington, July 23 (A.P.).—A crop of about 13,588,000 equivalent 500-pound bales of cotton this year was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture in its second production report of the season. The first forecast, announced July 3, was 14,339,000 bales. Last year's crop totaled 13,627,836 bales.

Foreign Exchange

Foreign exchanges were irregular, with demand Sterling falling below $4.85½ and Danish Kroner again selling at the highest level in several years.

Professional Services

DR. WALSH

"I was so stiff and sore in all my joints that I could not pick up a pin or help myself in any degree," said Mrs. G. H. Benson, 30 Cambridge St., Revere, Mass. She continued: "All this was the result of Rheumatic Fever. My bills for doctors and medicine were mounting up at a fearful rate and I could see no prospect of being well again when an old schoolmate saw me and felt so sorry for my condition that he told me of Dr. Walsh and what he had done for him. He told me that he was so sure that Dr. Walsh could heal me that he would pay the Doctor's bill in case he failed. This encouraged me so that I tried Dr. Walsh and can say that my schoolmate's confidence was not misplaced, and I am anxious to convey to others my knowledge of Dr. Walsh's skill so that others may benefit as I did. The most remarkable thing about Dr. Walsh is that his services and medicine are so inexpensive."

Oregon School Case Decision Curb on Bigoted Coercion

One of the most important judicial decisions of recent times—and one of the most commendable—is the decision of the United States Supreme Court, delivered by Associate Justice McReynolds in the Oregon school case. Mr. Justice McReynolds, a Democrat, is a Tennessean. One of his associates on the great tribunal, Mr. Justice Sanford, a Republican, is also a citizen of Tennessee.

The case involved the validity of a law of the State of Oregon which provided that after September 1, 1926, all normal children in the State between the ages of eight and sixteen would have to attend the public schools until they had completed the eighth grade.

The law was attacked by two private schools as contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which provides that "No State . . . shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

In his opinion Mr. Justice McReynolds said: "The fundamental theory of liberty upon which all governments in this Union repose excludes any general power of the State to standardize its children by forcing them to accept instruction from public teachers only."

Whatever one may think of the Supreme Court's growing tendency to sit in the capacity of exalted oracle and determine for Americans what laws are for their welfare and what are not, which laws should be allowed to stand and which should be set aside, all fair-minded people will hail this Oregon school decision as being perhaps the best use which the United States Supreme Court has made of its expanded jurisdiction.

Mr. Justice McReynolds declares that a law compelling children of a State to attend a public school violates the fundamental theory of liberty upon which all State governments rest. It may also be said that such a law also contradicts the purpose for which the public school system was organized.

Our fathers were for the public school because they believed that without universal education no republic could long survive. They were not opposed to private schools. In fact, most of the leaders among the fathers had been educated in private schools.

But in that day education was the luxury of the few. The fathers saw that it was a universal necessity in a self-governing community and so they arranged that while the fortunate were educating their children in private schools, the State would educate the children of the less fortunate at public expense.

Many parents send their children to private parochial schools, believing that religious instruction is as important as general education. The Oregon law was directed against such private schools. But our Constitution guarantees freedom of religion, and the Oregon school decision goes far in the direction of holding that the public schools cannot be used, under pretense of safeguarding the education of children, to support partisan political or religious controversial movements. State Legislatures are prohibited from doing indirectly what the Constitution forbids them to do directly.

One of the fundamental differences between the government of the United States and the governments of other great countries is the separation under our government of the church and the State.

The King of England cannot marry a woman who is not a member of the Church of England. A royal Princess reared in another land as a Catholic must change her faith in order to become Queen of England.

But in America the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion forbids any Legislature or Congress to create, or to attempt to create, a State religion.

We are, nevertheless, a God-fearing people. Religious faith is bred in the bone of the race. And from the earliest times our wise forefathers fostered the study of science which the Tennessee legislators now seem to regard askance. In one of his earliest messages to Congress President Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, wrote:

> "Education is here placed among the articles of the public care. A public institution can alone supply those sciences which, though rarely called for, are yet necessary to complete the circle, all parts of which contribute to the improvement of the country, and some of them to its preservation."

The most sacred relationship between parent and child is the privilege of directing the intellectual development of one's children, giving them what they need most, what their peculiar qualifications demand.

Freedom is chiefly a thing of the mind, and so the decision of Mr. Justice McReynolds is most welcome. Let us hope that it will halt this un-American epidemic of bigoted restrictions on the part of State governments.

Rainbow Division Veterans Could Not Have Made a Better Choice for President of Their Association

The Rainbow Division Veterans could not have made a better choice for president of their association than the Rev. Francis P. Duffy, beloved chaplain of the old Sixty-ninth Regiment.

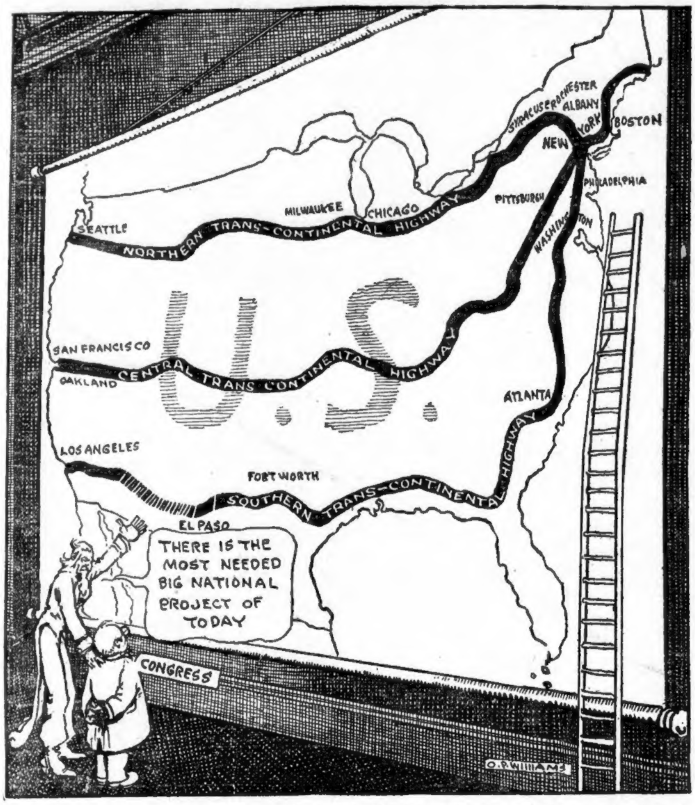
Father Duffy

He has been more than spiritual adviser to them. Companion-in-arms, he has shared their griefs and their joys, in camp, battlefield and hospital.

He has pleaded their cause to the very court of heaven. They have always considered him their leader, inferior in rank to none in the division.

By electing him president they have merely persuaded him to accept the title as well as the duties of the position.

Let's Build These Highways



THE Federal Government should take the initiative in constructing three great national highways between the Atlantic and the Pacific. It should assume the larger part of the cost and the States through which the mighty roads pass should aid, in proportion to their means and to the direct benefits received.

Sections of such trans-continental highways have been built here and there, but the nation needs real national highways, straight-away and strongly built, wide and uninterrupted, for through motor traffic.

Such highways would supplement the great steam railroads in transportation of freight and passengers. They would encourage Americans to see their own country and enjoy it. They would instill patriotism and encourage commerce and common understanding among all sections. In peace or war, their value would be incalculable.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland.

CAN a woman "flap" at fifty?

Of course she can—and more power to her!

Some women are flappers from the cradle to the grave; they begin by coquetting with their grandfathers and end by vamping their grandsons.

Helen Rowland

But vamping and coquetting are the merest bi-products of real serious flapping. Petting, smoking and carrying a pocket flask are no more synonymous with flapping in the higher sense, than snow is with Christmas. The original flapper who did all those things has passed out of the picture along with the buns she wore over her ears.

• • •

Flapping is simply being young at heart and looking at life with young eyes and new enthusiasms. Flapping is the rejuvenation of the spirit—the Fourth of July of the soul!

If a woman of fifty has the urge to flap, and has never before had a chance to flap—then let her FLAP!

• • •

If bobbing her hair, bobbing her skirts and making a cupid's bow of her lips make her feel younger, more alive and more pleased with herself—then let her flap!

• • •

If swimming, golfing, driving a car and learning the new dance steps lift the weight of years from her shoulders, put more zest into her body and more sweetness and joy onto her spirit—then let her flap!

• • •

Just so long as the flapper of fifty does not delude herself with the foolish notion that she is a man-charmer and a Ninon de L'Enclos; just as long as she does not imagine that her dear, sweet, middle-aged heart and emotions are being stirred to a youthful passion, or that her beauty is what a young man fancies when he is after her husband's insurance money—let her flap.

• • •

Let her keep the muscles of her heart supple, her vanity alive and glowing, and her enthusiasms running on all six cylinders—just so long as they are concentrated on something besides men and the love-game.

• • •

Heaven knows this world is full of a number of wonderful things, besides men. Leave all the sentimental self-delusions and heart-aches to the MALE flappers of fifty, who don't know when their petting days are over!

• • •

Leave the men to the younger women—and you can flap as hard and as long and as violently as you please without a shattered illusion or a sprained vanity.

• • •

But once you enter the man-charming game on your second-wind, you are facing defeat and self-illusionment.

• • •

And nothing in this good old world is quite so heart breaking and soul destroying and life wrecking as losing your illusions about YOURSELF.

• • •

Flap gloriously, gracefully, frankly, discreetly—flap, and stay young forever!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

IF only the thoughtless could understand how the other man labors with head and hand, could know of his toil through the weary day, of the burden he bears as his hair grows gray! If only the careless could know just why the bright time of his youth slipped so swiftly by, why into the shade of the years he crept as his dreams grew dim and his fair hopes slept, they would gladly turn from their cruel ways with a smile of cheer and a word of praise; they would give to his effort its honest due . . . all the careless and thoughtless, if they knew. They would make old Earth change to a fairer place, having less of vexation and more grace, sweet with blossoms of kindness in every land, if only the heedless could understand!

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE weather in some cities has been so hot that thousands of people are sleeping in the public parks. They bring their own sheets and pillow cases with them and retire in the flower beds.

ONE guy made himself perfectly at home. He put hooks in the trees to hang his clothes on.

HE bought a cake of soap and used the fountain for a bathtub.

AND then he tried to sue the city because the water wasn't hot.

IN a public park the gardener is the chambermaid.

HE makes the beds with a rake.

ONE fellow had the gardener stand at his bedside all night and scratch his back with the hoe every time a mosquito bit him.

HE slept there three nights and wore out five rakes.

FINALLY he went over to the playground and took one of the nets from the tennis court. He thought it would keep the flies off of him.

BUT he woke up the next morning and found that he had been bitten by seven tennis balls.

ONE advantage in sleeping in the park is that you never have to worry whether the back door is locked.

AND your wife can't get you up in the middle of the night to see if there are any burglars downstairs.

IF it gets cold in the evening and you haven't any blankets, you can throw two or three benches over you.

BENCHES are good and warm if you use enough of them.

BUT of course these wooden quilts are hard to tuck in around your neck.

BESIDES, it takes you all the next morning to pick the splinters out of your Adam's apple.

THE city ought to buy benches that don't shed.

WHILE the parks have plenty of outside suites, summer tourists can get better sleeping accommodations at the hotels.

PLAY THE GAME OF LIFE TO WIN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LIFE may be compared to a game.

We are not responsible for the cards that we have to play with, the cards that are dealt to us, but we are responsible for the way we play them.

The game has certain rules. It is well to study and know these rules. Those who play fair will get farther along than those who attempt to cheat. For those who play fair will find all men eventually their friends. They will acquire the confidence and esteem of their fellows, while those who are caught in cheating once are never trusted again.

We are living in a universe with certain laws and rules. It is well to find out what these are. Ignorance excuses no man.

A dose of prussic acid taken by mistake will kill you as quickly as though you took it intentionally.

Keep sweet and keep your chin up. What matter if you do lose occasionally? You will gain next time. With constant diligence, patience and address you will be able to win if you give your attention to the rules.

When you play you want to play hard. You want to devote your life to it and watch the law of averages. Keep on the safe side as far as possible, but don't be afraid once in a while to take a chance.

Play to win. You are in this game not only to pass away the time, but you are here to achieve certain results. By deftness and skill you can accomplish what you desire.

If you have not the requisite ability and shrewdness to make a successful player, you can at least have integrity and be a good loser.

It is found that the good losers are just as popular in the game of life as the winners.

Very often when a man has gained his prize he finds that he is no happier than he was before. Happiness consists in playing the game well and not in achieving some particular end.

MAN'S CLEAR PATENT OF NOBILITY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"My friend insists that we are only worms crawling around on this earth, and things we do don't mean much one way or the other—i. e., right or wrong. But I feel we are intelligent human beings. I believe some people abuse the laws of nature and their intelligence, but there are millions left that make an effort to live a normal and intelligent life wisely. We would appreciate an article on this subject.—G. and B.

YOU are right, and your friend's thought is morally and mentally unwholesome. Such drifting notions undermine character.

Can you imagine George Washington or Abraham Lincoln entertaining them for an instant? No man or woman who accomplishes anything in this world for the benefit and happines of self or of others ever thinks of human beings as only crawling worms whose acts are of no consequence one way or the other.

Human nature, with all its faults and failings, is to be admired. And, upon the whole, it improves. Consider what man has risen from. A hundred thousand years ago, or more, his intelligence was low, even though then far above the brute level.

To Higher Power

By exercising it, by feeling it to be an essential part of himself, he has raised his intelligence to a higher power. He has helped in his own evolution—and he is the only creature on earth which has done that.

The splendors and wonders of civilization are dazzling evidences of the constant utilization by man of his superior intelligence. "Crawling worms" indeed Could creatures whose actions one way or the other meant nothing have built the pyramids or developed Egyptian civilization or Greek philosophy and poetry or Roman law and world rule?

What is it that has given to the world today the airship, the earth-encircling voice, the conquest (almost) of the atom's secret and of the primal sources of universal energy?

Man himself has done it by the use and development of his inborn intelligence. No demi-god has stooped down to help him. No demi-god would venture to call him a "crawling worm." If the fire had not been burning in man's own soul it would never have kindled into this great blaze.

Whoever looks meanly upon essential human nature is unworthy of his birthright. He is undermining his own house. And he undermines it even faster if he condemns its morality as well as its intelligence.

Doing right or doing wrong is all pretty much the same thing—does you friend say? It is folly run mad. Perhaps he has been infected with the false philosophy that would make "enlightened self-interest" the only rule of morality. Or he may have heard and believed that there is no moral faculty implanted in man.

Don't allow any such notion to find lodgment in your thoughts. Man is as surely a moral as he is an intelligent being. Low morality brings failure and downfall even more surely than low intelligence.

Theologies have had too much influence in determining definitions of morality. Man's own inner consciousness unerringly defines what is moral and what is immoral, and never makes a mistake, no more than the sense of vision confuses light with darkness.

In every home of man, under every clime, whether amidst civilized or uncivilized conditions, the underlying distinction between right and wrong is fully recognized.

Moral Law

Differences in particular practices, due to variation of circumstances of education, of history, make no difference in the nature of the moral law itself. That law gives rise to the sense of duty.

"Stern daughter of the voice of God."

Yes, and the crowning glory of humanity!

What we call "character"—a thing not easily to be defined—is based on the moral nature, and lifts man even higher than his brilliant mental endowment can bear him.

A most striking historic proof is seen in the way this quality has covered the name Washington, though his mental gifts were not very remarkable, with a resplendent fame which outshines the renown of that intellectual miracle called Napoleon.

ARE YOU CONTENT TO REST ON YOUR ACHIEVEMENTS?

When you are faced with errors in your work do you immediately excuse yourself in your own mind? Do you think that because your early training was inadequate, you should not be expected to do perfect work?

Perhaps you feel pretty well satisfied with what you can do and you give that impression.

And because you do feel so self-appreciative, you have ceased to try to attain greater perfection.

Don't waste time patting yourself on the back.

You may have had greater handicaps than some, but you will find that many are going farther than you are with even greater handicaps.

Sometimes you think what great things you might have done if the conditions in your early life had been favorable.

But if your road had been easy, you might not have travelled as far as you have toward success because you would not have exerted enough effort.

You had to work, study and plan to get where you are or you would have fallen by the wayside; so keep at it.
